What has the attention of Virginia Beach resident Benita Burroughs? It's hard to tell, of course, but we'll give you a hint. It's either the sand, sun, water, or some other outstanding element of Virginia beach. Burroughs, a student at Old Dominion University, Norfolk, says she loves the Beach, and would never live anywhere else, especially when the beaches are filled with people like they were last weekend. Burroughs enjoys biking, sailing, surfing, and swimming in her spare time, which there is very little of since she studies nursing at O.D.U.

HEN THE SUN GOES DOWN. . .

Travelers from across the Nation flock to Virginia Beach annualy; some for the warm sun, some for the cool sun, some for both.

But whatever the reason for visiting Virginia Beach, there is always one thing all Beach visitors, and local residents, agree they need to know that is, where to go After The Sun Goes Down.

Gun permit policy questioned

'We're not using a death ray' -Beane

Virginia Beach gun merchants and law enforcement officials seem to be having a quiet shootout over making handguns more easily obtainable for local residents.

Beach gun dealers charge that the procedure for pur-chasing a gun in Virginia Beach involves cutting through a lot of red tape; borders on being unconstitutional; and is time consuming.

Purchasing a handgun in Virginia beach requires an individual to fill out an application, and be finger-printed at police headquarters in the Virginia Beach municipal center on Princess Anne road. Then the applicant must wait for an unpredictable length of time for the application to be processed. Processing dictated by city code, includes the individuals's name and social security number being screend through computer systems for any possible criminal record in several surrounding cities.

The system is unfair

But the required procedure is unfair, according to Beach gun salesman Rick Bowles.

"Why must a potential gun buyer submit to a criminal investigation before being issued a permit to buy a gun," questions Bowles, floor manager at Atlantic and Pacific Arms Company, Virginia Beach

"It's a flagrant example of being judged guilty until proven innocent," he continued.

Bowles admits that it is not the intent of the city's code regarding weapon purchase permits that he argues with; but it doesn't deter crime, and is inefficiently administered.

"It's not that I think it's wrong for a city government to try to keep a count of handguns at the Beach," Bowles said, "but there are a couple of problems with the policy.

"First, why must a perspective gun buyer go to the police headquarters, and only the headquarters to apply for a permit? Why not allow them to go to precincts?

"Secondly, the form in which the applicant fills out at police headquarters is a duplicate of the form they must fill out here, under federal regualtions, when they purchase the gun. Why can't we, the dealer, just send the city a copy of the form, instead of making the potential buyer go 15 miles from nowhere to fill out a separate one."

Bowles also argues that if the computer system, which is tied into Norfolk, Richmond, and Washington, operated correctly all the time, the merchant's beef ldn't be so great.

"If you ask the police department how long it will take to get a permit," Bowles said, "they'll tell you it depends on if the computer is down (not working) or

"Police officials will say that ideally, a person may have their permit in 30 minutes if the computers up and down the line are working properly; but I don't believe it. I've applied several times for permits, and it usually takes about three days."

Bowles also contends that it is inconvenient for many people who may want to purchase a gun permit in Virginia Beach to do so, because the office which handles them is only open Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; the hours most people work. He asks:

"Is it fair to make a man take off work, up to two and a half hours to drive all the way out to the courthouse, only to fill out the same sheet of paper they'll eventually fill out here, or why not open the office on Saturdays?"

Finally, Bowles maintains that the constitution guarantees the right of an individual to bear ars, and that present city code is "an infringement of that right when the decision of whether or not to allow a person to buy a handgun in Virginia Beach is at the desgression of

"I say take the guilty until proven innocent stigma away from the gun buyers, and make stiffer penalties and laws for persons is caught using a gun."

The police feel differently

The Virginia Beach Police, however, see things dif-

Captain M. E. Beane, Service Division, supports the city's weapons purchase policy, and disagrees with most of Bowles' accessments of the gun permit situation in Virginia beach.

"The present weapons purchase policy, said Beane, "is part of the city's code, and we in the department support it.

"The permits assist us in keeping handguns out of the criminals hands. I knolw they get them, but we won't (see NO page 4) condone it in Virginia Beach. There's no way we'd let a man with a criminal record legally acquire a handgun.

No solution in sight

"I feel that the policy is "ssential to the safety of the community and I am not worried that the gun dealers may lose a few sales.

Does it deter crime?

Beane admits that it's hard to tell if gun control laws actually deter crime, but like most crime prevention techniques, it's always hard to tell how effective they

"I don't have many statistics that indicate that a weapons purchase policy actually contributes to the decline of gun related crime," Beane said.

"But how do we know how many, or which programs are prevented by our community crime prevention programs? Should we do away with those also because we don't know exactly how much crime they deter?

we don't know exactly how much crime they deter?"
Neither does Beane think the policy is an "infringement" of one's constitutional rights.
"No. I don't think it's unconstitutional," he said, "I think the policy is for the good of the community.
"Too many times we think about the protection of the individual's rights too much, and not of all the lives of an entire city or community. Where do we draw the line or liberalness? I mean, afterall, we're not using a death ray on applicants; we're just making a routing death ray on applicants; we're just making a routine record check."

The computer goes down

Beane says from time to time, the record check crime computer gets overloaded, but that's to be expected because of the workload of the cities that use the crime computer.

"There will be an occasional problem with the computers," Beane said, "but that's to be expected sooner or later if you consider the work the computer does in addition to weapons permit applications. We try to take measures to help the applicants in event of this, such as sending the approved permit through the mail so they won't have to wait if the computer is busy.'

No precinct processing

Concerning making precincts able to process permits,-Beane said it was not practical.

"We can't allow the precincts to process applications for several reasons," he said, "But mainly from the standpoint of control.

"It would be a lot of troule to gear up for the precincts to handle the revenue generated by the permits; they're not well equipped to handle additional daily financial responsibilities.

"Plus, if we allowed weapons purchase permits to be processed at that level, we'd have to allow things like bingo, raffles, concealed weapons, and other permits to be processed there; we couldn't stop at one permit.

The police headquarters in the municipal center is ideal for what we need. It has enough room to allow the headquarters to serve as a control base for all such transactions."

No processing on Saturday

Also not practical is opening the city offices on Saturday.

"We open the office in accordance with the same hours that fall within the city structure," Beane said, "i.e. the treasurer's office, the tax accessor's office, or the Division of Motor Vehicles.

"People don't expect to get their city car decals at nights or on weekends do they? It would be hard to get people to work then anyway, not to mention the cost to the city for the additional hours we'd have to pay employees for."

Who needs guns in one day?

Guns for safety, money?

By GREG GOLDFARB

Merchants would sell them seven days a week without permits if they could.

Law enforcement officials, however, would like to keep track of as many handguns as possible, and try to keep them out of the hands of as many undesirables as they can. But in taking such measures, it cuts in to the money market of the gun business.

Whose arguement has the most validity? It's hard to

All kinds of people are interested in, and fasinated with guns.

Guns, a symbol of power, make big men walk bigger, and make little women stand pretty tall

But who is the typical gun buyer?

My older brother, for instance, is 36 and has been attracted to guns since he was six. He now borders on

As he became older, and went into high school, he was known to go muskrat hunting in the creeks and trenches of Portsmouth, with small caliber rifles.

After being drafted in the Viet Nam War, he found himself in the Navy, flying shotgun in a helicopter firing a machine gun into the forest. He says he doesn't think he even hit anything much less kill anyone.

Today, he is married, has a nice house and a Bassett Hound, and a downstairs room full of guns.

He owns hand-held rifles, derringers, guns with no barrels, guns with four barrels, target pistols, and assorted rifles.

He also has a Clint Eastwood type gun, a .44

Magnum, which can deliver loads which will blow a hole through a brick wall; great little guns for getting note through a brick wall; great little guns for getting someone's attention.

My brother has been playing with guns since he was a kid, and now collects them. But he has never used a gun offensively, except in the service; and lawfully owns all of them. He also feels more comfortable knowning that he at least has the means to protect his wife if intruders have to be dealt with.

Exemply reches, when taking the trouble of

For my brother, other than taking the trouble of leaving, work to go apply for the permit, which you'd have to do for any city permit such as a building permit, he said he didn't mind having to apply to get a permit, or even waiting a few days for it to come in the mail.

For what reason would he or anyone need a permit so rownat reason would ne or anyone need a permit so urgently to warrent same day service?

Cun dealers will answer that if you know the gun market, sometimes they want to be able to get a gun in one day for financial reasons. And obviously, they reason, no criminal would ever go to the police department and apply for a gun. So the only people filing for permits are honest citizens who must put up with the red tame of Virginia Beach's weapons purchase with the red tape of Virginia Beach's weapons purchase permit system instead of going to another city, and this, permit system instead of going to another city, and this, is what they don't like,

The police consider themselves acting in the best interest of the community by enforcing the permit law.

The gun dealers see the permit as an infraction of one's constitutional rights, and also a loss of income.

It's true that guns don't kill people, people kill people, and the Virginia Beach Police should be supported in their efforts to take measures designed to keep portential murder weapons cut of the hands of keep potential murder weapons out of the hands of known societal misfits. And needless toway, the police aren't going to allow private businesses to conduct their own permit procedures for their own customers.
P.S. Bang! Just kidding Teddy.

LETTERS TO THE CONTOR

Thanks for the Sun

I want to congratulate you, and your publisher, for resenting Virginia beach with the new Virginia Beach

It's everything Virginia Beach has wanted in a newspaper, and more.

As always, the Sun has the best newspaper photographs in the area.

Thank you again.

Curb your dogs, please

Why don't the dog owners who walk their dogs on the boardwalk at the beach, clean up after them when they mess up on the grass. And in the sand.

Dogs are tolerable, if they keep their distance, but other parts of them aren't.

I suggest the moped riding policemen on the boardwalk give out tickets if they see a dog doing his duty, and don't clean it up.

The 1978 Bayside High School graduate, who was among other things, a cheerleader, five years, a gymnaist, 3 years, and a member of the National Honor Society, Bates now attends college at William and Mary.

She will compete in the televised Miss Virginia Pageant in Roanoke, July 7 through 12. If she should win that, she will compete in the Miss America pageant, Sept. 6, in Atlantic City.

If Bates wins the Miss Virginia title, she will be foreced to postpone her junior year in college. A big decision for someone who had only entered one other pageant before this summer.

'I never planned on being in it," said Bates.

"But a friend of mine who was in it last year asked me if I was going to be in this year's pageant. She checked for me and found out that there was still time to enter. So I did."

Her pageant opinion changed

Bates said she competed in a Miss Teenage Virginia Pageant years ago, but said it left a bad opinion of pageants in her mind. She said the pageant was "unfair," But said this one was "great."

3,000 Beach students graduate next Sunday

All seven Virginia Beach public high schools will hold graduation ceremonies this year on Sunday afternoon, June 15

A total of more than 3,000 students will graduate. Five of the schools will begin the ceremony at 2 p.m.; the other two will start at 3 p.m.

Bayside, Cox, First Colonial, Kellam, and Princess

Anne have set the earlier starting times, and all five ceremonies will be held in the stadiums of the respective schools. Kempsville and Green Run have the 3:00 p.m. starting time; Kempsville's will be at the stadium, but Green Run's commencement will be held in the gymnasium, since the stadium and athletic field there are not totally finished.

The largest graduating class this year is at Kempsville, with 696 candidates; the smallest is Green Run, with 325. When Green Run opened last fall, seniors had the choice between their old school or Green Run. Many

Design for $5.3 million museum set

The architectural firm of Shriver and Holland has been selected to design the $5.3 million Virginia Beach Marine Sciences Museum.

Announcement of the building committee's choice Monday afternoon was followed by criticism from some Council members that the firm is essentially a Norfolk firm although it has an office in Virginia Beach.

City manager George L. Hanbury also announced at the informal session Council that the Boston firm of E. Vernon Johnson, which has expertise in this type of project, was selected to be a consultant to the local firm.

Hanbury said that he hoped to have schematics, proposed layouts, and a model by January for presentation to the Virginia general Assembly which is expected to contribute some of the funds for the project, local, federal and private financing also is anticipated.

Councilman George R. Ferrell remarked that he "though we'd give it to (a Virginia Beach firm)."

Hanbury said that Shriver and Holland was selected because the company has worked with fragile areas. It is architect for the visitor's center in the Dismal Swamp and designed for Norfolk International Airport at the Azalea Gardens. Johnson did the original study for the museum for Virginia Beach.

The museum will be located on a site at Owls Creek on General Booth Boulevard.

Mac Rawls, project director, said that about 20 acres of the site is suitable for construction and that these areas are cordered by marshland which will be integrated in the project.

No firm policy

Councilman Reid Ervin, who has supported selection of local firms as consultants, pointed out that the Building Committee did not have the benefit of a firm

The committee includes Mayor Patrick L. Standing. W. e. Fanney, John Fowler, Ruben I. Hedspeth, R. Dean Lee, J. Harry Mote and Public Works Director

Ervin also pointed out, however, that there were not a great number of contracts of this size awarded to local architectural firms and that many can use the business.

Hanbury said the problem is that a firm may be called a Norfolk firm, but the entire firm may live in Virginia Beach. One of the engineering firms which has protested the most about awarding contracts outside the city, has become associated with Shriver and Holland on the project, he added. Hanbury also said that he understood that Virginia beach architects have been hired for Norfolk and Chesapeake projects.

Councilman Clarence A. Holland said that the selection should be made on the basis of the best interest of the taxpayers. He said there are times when contracts should go to firms outside the city and that he formerly felt otherwise "but I'm sorry I thought that way."

He said that Norfolk did away with a written policy on the matter and that putting a policy down in black and white might hamstring the city.

Much interest

Of the 32 architectural firms sent announcements of the project by the Public Works Department, most indicated a interest, Rawls said.

The responses included qualifications from approximately 30 firms which were reviewed by the city engineer and his assistant and the utilities engineer and his assistant and Rawls, resulting in a final list of 11.

After one firm dropped out, and two combined, the Committee considered the final nine of which six firms are headquartered in Virginia Beach and Shriver and Holland with an office in the Beach.

Who wants the books?

Eliminating all unsolicited materials from the Public Library of Virginia Beach does not seem to be the answer to solving the problems arising from one, the homosexual publication My Own.

City manager George L. Hanbury told council Monday afternoon at an informal session that the library receives unsolicited materials from 350 different agencies and to stop this flow of materials is "not in the

Hanbury was referring to a memorandum presented by Marcy Sims, library director, and Jack Robertson, chairman of the Public Library board, at the request of Council which wanted to know the library's policy on unsolicited material

Immediately after releasing the report, Hanbury asked for an executive session to discuss the matter and asked Council to avoid expressing opinions until after

He also said that My Own has been removed "completely" from the library "for some time."

Local objections

Church and citizen groups objected to the availability of the newsletter in and its distsribution from the library. Two weeks ago, the city presented Council with a report on how other library systems make decisions on removing publications from the libraries and requested the unsolicited materials policy here.

In Virginia Beach, the library uses three criterial for accepting unsolicited materials:

Materials must be free of any promotion of a particular person or political party.

Materials must not have as their intent the advertisement of products or services of profit-making organizations or individuals.

Materials must be free of information that advocates a particular relegious viewpoint.

The policy was adopted to protect the library from any claims of favoritism toward an individual or group, the memorandum states, and some libraries have no policy at all. The Fairfax County Public Library, for instance, the report states, does accept partisan political campaign posters.

Critical role in community

The report states that unsolicited materials play a critical role within the community to link people with information appropriate to their needs. The information needed isn't always in books, but is available in (See POLICE page 11)

There is duplication

Beane agrees that there is a duplication of application forms in the two locations, but says there is a need for

"The duplication of forms is a good point," Beane confessed, "but we feel that we need to visibly see the individual before issuing a permit to them.
"We're not going to certify that a citizen deserves the right to carry a handgun unless we know that person is mentally stable, not a convicted felon, and at least not drunk at the time of applying."

Beane alos concedes the computer problem to

"Sometimes we have real problems with the computers," Beane acknowledged.

"Once an application is filed, the person's social security number is run through crime computers in Norfolk and Virginia Beach, as well as the Central Criminal Records Exchange in Richmond and the National Crime Information Center in Washington.

"If any of these computers are down in what we call the 10 Pin System, there is a delay in the processing of the application; but never are all the computers down at the same time.

"Under normal conditions, if we attempt to process 20 applications, maybe a quarter of them will be delayed."

ane contends that no one makes the public buy their handguns in Virginia Beach, but residents are free to do so in cities such as Hampton, Newport News and Suffolk, where no permit is necessary.

Settle the question in court

He says it's a question that will have to decided in

"The citizen has an option," Beane said, "as to whether or not he wants to take a chance on the computer, or go to another city and buy their gun.

"And whether or not Virginia beach will change its existing laws is a question that will be answered in the courtroom.

"Our city attorney has said also, he would back us if a case was taken against the city in court."

No case so far

But, according to Edwin S. Clay, III, assistant to the city manager/public relation/public information and human resources co-ordinator, there has been no action brought against council, and sees none on the horizon.

"There is no action that I know of underway in regard to changing weapon purchase permits procedures," Clay said, "and there has been none that I can remember since 1975 when I came to work for the city.

"But if the issue did come up, I don't know how council would react.'

City Attorney J. Dale Bimson didn't return the Sun's call for his comments.

She sings, dances, and loves the Beach; even better than Greece

"Greece is a beautiful country," said former eight year Greece resident and current Virginia Beach Sunshine girl Stella Paskal, "but the people here in America, and especially Virginia Beach, are nicer."

"The native Greeks seem a little colder," she explained. "It's not that they're really backwards, it's just that they're more concerned with their family than friends."

ODU art student

The daughter of mobile military parents, Mr. and Mrs. Spiro Paskal, Stella, 22, is a student at Old Dominion University, studying art.

She said she can remember drawing as early as the age of six.

"I've been drawing ever since I can remember," she recalls with a smile, "I guess when I was six.

"Drawing is my favorite hobby, and I hope someday to be a commercial artist. I've got over 100 drawings, mostly in pencils, but a few oils."

Born in Illinois, Stella has lived in several states, including, Alabama, California, South Carolina, and Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. John MacLeod

Her best friend in Virginia Beach is Karen MacLeod, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John MacLeod who live in the Thalia section of Virginia Beach.

Her hobbies include swimming, painting and drawing, singing, and dancing.

She likes classical, and rock and roll music; her favorite artist is Bob Segar.

Stella hopes to get married, "but only after I get a career started. The wedding and children will come later."

She is 5' 5", and weighs 121 pounds.

Paskal carefully prepares for the upcoming evening

Reading is a favorite past time of Paskal. Here she enjoys the late afternoon sun in her backyard.

borchures, pamphlets, flyers, newsletters, posters and announcments of every variety.

Ideally the public library might agressively seek this information but the cost would be prohinitive. so the library welcomes the unsolicited materials which "bring authritiative, accurate and timely information about local events, programs, and activities to the attention of the residents of the city."

These materials include state and local government publications and materials from hospitals, civic leagues, garden clubs, local universities, civic transportation authority, the United Way and other private and public organizations.

Police see needed imporvement

Most Virginia Beach police officers believe they serve on one of the best police department in the country.

'However, they still find room for considerable improvement in the operation of the department.

Communications within the department is the major areas which officers find lacking. In a survey made for the Police Department in February, two out of three officers responded that communication breakdowns exist and the most frequently as the chain of command rises.

Other areas found lacking were:

•The majority of officers feel they are too bogged down with paperwork to do an effective job and feel that they need new or better equipment to do their job effectively.

•Four out of ten officers indicate they don't have a real sense of accomplishment from their job and about the same number do not feel they are getting ahead in the department.

Comparing results to those in a similar survey made in March of 1979, job satisfaction is up. Now, 57 percent of the Police officers are satisfied with their jobs, and 11 percent increase, with management personnel most satisfied (75 percent), patrolmen next with 54 percent, and detectives last with 46 percent.

The findings are included in a polic officer job satisfaction and organizational climate analysis, the last of 11 surveys included in the first year evaluation of the Police Department's Integrated Criminal Apprehension Program (ICAP), a half million dollar program financed under the Law Enforcement Assistance Act (LEAA).

With the first quarter of a million dollar phase completed with the 11 evaluations, the city is starting on the second half of the program.

Successful program

Wolfgang Pindur, Ph.D., principal investigator for the Old Dominion University research Foundation which is making the study, told council Monday at an informal meeting that results of the evaluations indicate that ICAP has been highly successful in Virginia Beach, that it has led to tremendous citizen satisfaction with the Police Department, and that the Department's telephone report system is effective.

He said, however, that the job satisfaction survey follow-up is getting the most attention.

He cited improvements in the department between the March 1, 1979 survey and the Bebruary 1980. The image (See NEW page 12)

Growing Things

Why do humans have such an affinity for growing things? Every home no matter how small has at least one green plant that is tenderly nutured. Perhaps this is the only way many of us can maintain our contact with God. Whenever we see evidence of new growth we are reminded that God is still at work in the world.

Spiritual growth is much more subtle, but it is every bit as important. Are you continuing to experience spiritual growth, just as your plants experience new growth?

If you have lost touch with your church, make a renewed effort to attend this Sunday. You will experience new growth as a result.

New program stress's high points of patrol duty has improved, attitudes toward immediate supervisors remained relatively high in 1980 with clear majorities of officers stating that their supervisors keep well informed of general problems and open to suggestions for change.

Pindur said that individual comments show that the officers would like more open attitudes and a participatory style is needed.

The second phase will include training and a look at the management system, Pindur said, although the study can be changed to include a management study if Council wishes. Structural approach

The ICAP program is designed to build a structural approach to the management and integration of police services linking data collection, analysis, planning and service delivery. The eventual goal is better police protection and criminal apprehension.

In the first police survey, the majority of the police officers indicated they would like to remain in police work, considered their present job better than their previous work and would not like another occupations.

Other surveys evaluation, police officer direct contract, a citizen attitude survey, an analaysis of offense reports, crime analysis unit operations, crime analysis unit work load study, management of crime analysis information bulletins and patterns, crime analysis unit survey and major offender unit.

1980 results

The first phase covers the period Oct, 1 1978 to April 30, 1980 with the following results:

- •Improved patrol resource management.
- Expansion of the patrol officer's role.
- Implementation of a crime analysis unit.
- •Initiation of a planned patrol program.
- •Development of a steering committee to participate in program monitoring and implementation.

SOMETHING ABOUT VIRGINIA'S BEACHES ATTRACTS VISITORS IN WAVES.

They stretch north and south to a golden infinity, over a hundred and twenty miles of some of the most beautiful beaches in America.

Here are resort beaches, secluded beaches, tiny islands, and seaside gardens. And here's Virginia Beach, longest resort beach in the world, with a summertime art show along the boardwalk, nightclubs and fine restaurants, and the place where the earliest permanent settlers touched the shores of the New World.

When you visit Virginia's beaches this summer, getting there is half the fun. You can stop off on the way at Kings Dominion for exciting rides and shows. You can cross magnificent mountains of Southwest Virginia, like the Indians of centuries past. You can linger awhile in Colonial Williamsburg or Old Town Alexandria, and get to know the fascinating world of the eighteenth century.

Wherever you begin, whatever you visit in Virginia, you will always be drawn to the sea. Back to the beaches where visitors have been coming for almost four hundred years. And where, like the ocean waves, they keep returning again and again.

Virginia is for lovers.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

Notice is hereby given that by June 17, 1980, the City of Virginia Beach will submit to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) a request and certification for the release of $50,000 of the City's Fourth Year (1978-79) funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, reauthorized by Congress and amended as of 1977. The request and certification for the release of funds pertains to the CD Relocation Assistance activity.

Purpose of the Relocation Assistance Activity: The CD Relocation Plan is designed to provide relocation assistance and to minimize the hardships of Individuals, families, small businesses, and non-profit organizations either temporarily or permanently displaced because of the City's CD Rehabilitation/Minimum Housing Code enforcement program. The main idea behind relocation under the regulations of the federal Uniform Act is to relocate persons to comparable replacement housing. Comparable replacement housing is that which is 1) currently available when the relocation occurs, 2) most representative of the housing from which displaced persons are being moved, 3) in ciose proximity to employment, and 4) affordable to the displaced persons, etc.

No acquisition of real property will be undertaken with the Relocation Assistance activity.

Financial Benefits and Services Related to Relocation Assistance:
Under the CD Relocation Plan guidelines, eligible renters and homeowners can receive moving expenses and replacement housing expenses in accordance with the federal Uniform Act.
Eligible small businesses and non-profit organizations can also receive relocation assistance benefits.

It is the responsibility of the Office of HCD to ensure, to the greatest extent possible, that every displaced person or organization have the opportunity to relocate to a site or dwelling of their choice and that they will not be discriminated against because of race, color, creed, sex, national origin, or source of income.

because of race, color, creed, sex, national origin, or source or income.

The City of Virginia Beach will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of HUD under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, reauthorized by Congress and amended as of 1977. The City of Virginia Beach is certifying to HUD that the City of Virginia Beach and George L. Hanbury, in his official capacity as City Manager, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal, effect of this certification is that upon its approval, the City of Virginia Beach may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Polley Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer of the City, or 2) that in preparing the environmental review record for the activity, the City omitted a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (Title 24, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 58), and may be addressed to John A. LeVay, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, 701 East Franklin Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objections received after 5:00 p.m. on June 16, 1980 will be considered by HUD.

The City of Virginia Beach has prepared an environmental review record regarding the above activity for which the release of funds is sought. This record may be reviewed in the Office of Housing and Community Development at 302 22nd Street, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, except on a City holiday.

Virginia Beach Crime Watch

By GREG GOLDFARB

The following Beach crime report has been obtained from the Virginia Beach Police Department, Investigation Division:

Astro service station burglarized, 884 packs of cigarettes stolen, and cigarette vending machine.

Gladys Elenore Crockett reported to the Virginia Beach police department on May 28 that someone had forcibley entered the establishment located at 1613 Independence Boulevard.

'I can't really tell who broke into the shack housing the vending machines," said investigating officer D. W.

"But it was broken into by removing the padlock from the garage type door on the outside. Then, they removed the cigarette machine that was full of cigarettes.

"From indications at the scene, subjects placed the cigarette machine in a pickup truck that had dirt in the

Items reported missing, or damaged include: One gold and black cigarette machine, valued at $300; 884 boxes of assorted Brand C, $530; one padlock, $2; and $100 in currency and coins.

Two Whirlpool diswashers. and two garbage disposals stolen from business at 1105 Tall Oak Drive; entry gained by smashing window.

"The offense was reported by Steve Waters," said investigating detective, D. T. Maloney," on May 27.

"The building was entered through sliding glass doors; the device used to smash the window is unknown.

"Once entered, suspects entered living room and removed items listed below.

"It appeared that suspects carried dishwashers into an abandoned street about 100 yards from residense." Missing items include: Two Whirlpool dishwashers, total value, $450; two Whirlpool garbage disposals, $88.

Nineteen pound turkey stolen from Smokey's Grocery; ransacking attempted.

Lanny K. O'Camb reported on May 26 that someone had forced open the door to a grocery store, located at

"Unknown suspect(s) forced open the front door to the store," reported investigating officer W. M. Bailey. "After entry was gained," he continued, "subjects removed turkey from freezer case; then went into lounge and took an undetermined amount of cash, and attempted to force open juke box without success.

"Several one dollar bills were taken from a coin collection on bar, plus the waitresses' tip money.

Amount unknown."

The 19 pound turkey was valued at $13.58.

$1,359 in motorcycle rider accessories stolen from Brach Emporium Atlantic on Avenue.

Virginia Beach police officer J. S. Lewis, Jr. reported the following items missing from the Beach Emporium, 2106 Atlantic Avenue; part owner Norman William Brien reported offense on May 24.

Items reported missing and their value, include: Two large Harley Davidson patches, $40; one medium patch, $17; two small patches, $8; one white wing patch, $17; one black wing patch, $17; two brown wallets, $38; two black walets, $46; four decals, $13; 16 belt buckles, $115; five earrings, $30; 15 metal pins, $50; five rings, $253; one sterling silver arrowhead, $15; and 10, 14k gold pendants, $750.

Two calves killed and stolen from Bayville Farms; dragged from the barn; $600 in lost beef.

Allister Mackey reported to police on May 23 that cattle had been stolen from Bayville Farms, Inc.
"Unknown person(s) entered the barn," said investigating detective W. McLoughlin, Jr.,

removed two calves located on the farm.
"Evidence indicates that the calves were killed in the barn due to the large amount of blood located just out-

"After killed, they were dragged approximately one-third of a mile across pasture land to edge of a tributary of the Lynnhaven Inlet,"

The two, female Holstein cattle were valued at $600.

Conference table and chairs stolen from larkspur; suspects may have entered building with Wallace H. Davies reported to police on May 22 that office equipment had been stolen from 695 Edwin Drive, near Mount Trashmore.

"Unknown suspect(s) entered establishment probably with a key," said investigating officer. R. L. Tuttle, "possibly with a key. There is no evidence of forced entry, and five different people are known to have keys to the business at this time.

"Two of the people with keys are realtors who are getting estimates for the transaction of ownership."

Items reported missing, and their value, are: Four upholstered heavy duty swivel chairs, total value $600; one chrome, teak top conference table, eight to nine feet long, $1,000; one console table, $75; and one mahogany dining room service, $400.

Nice day for it!

"Oh how good it feels," thinks 22 year old Connie Turner as she lays motionless under Virginia Beach's burning hot sun. Connie was caught napping and sunbathing while visiting Beach friend Linda Meadows, a 12 year Beach resident. Both girls are waitresses' at The Sterling Silver Lounge.

Personnel development

•Personnel development through orientation to ICAP components and training in ICAP-related skills.

•Initiation of major offender/career criminal emphasis linked to the prosecutors's major offender Bureau.

The 1980 job satisfaction survey also shows that:

Uniformed patrol officers have strongly positive attitudes toward preliminary investigations

Only two-fifths of the criminal investigation officers agree that the command staff understands what is needed to do an effective job.

A smaller percentage of management responed in 1980 that belonging to cliques helps job advancement than did in the 1979 survey.

Management and patrol officers show consistently positive attitudes toward their supervision while detectives displayed significantly more negative attitudes toward supervision.

Detectives and patrol officers were consistently negative toward the command staff while management was significantly more positive toward the command staff in 1980 and it was in 1979.

In 1979, most detectives felt too bogged down with perwork but by 1980 the percentage of detectives who felt too bogged down showed a net decrease of 12 percent and for patrol officers a 25 percent increase.

Fewer percentages of officers in all ranks felt they needed new or better equipment to do their jobs.

Overall job satisfaction has increased in all ranks All three ranks of officers feel their salary directly influences the quality of their work.

A Virginia Beach native, Joyce Fain, 26, says she enjoys going out for dinner and dancing in Virginia Beach. She, and her husband John, may be found sometimes in their favorite nightclub, Pascals's, but only after having dinner in their favorite restaurant. The Lishthouse. Joyce's hobbies include swimming, racauetball. water and snow sking, yoga, and staining glass, She likes Virginia Beach, because, "of the ocean," she said, "and also because the mountains are within a few hour's ride. I think the Beach is a very progressive and energetic area, and hope to never leave." Joyce, whose maiden name is Joyce Humphreys, is 5'7", weighs 115 pounds, has green eyes and blonde hair. She and John live in the Great Neck Meadows section of Virginia Beach, and have one child.

R THE SUN GOES DOWN

Travelers from across the Nation flock to Virginia Beach annualy; some for the warm sun, some for the cool sun, some for both.

But whatever the reason for visiting Virginia Beach, there is always one thing all Beach visitors, and local residents, agree they need to know that is, where to go After The Sun Goes Down.

Scenes like this would not be possible in Virginia Beach if not for the city's continuing battle against erosion.

If erosion goes unchecked

'The Strip would cease to exist"

By GREG GOLDFARB

The only thing more consistent in Virginia Beach than

The only thing more consistent in Virginia Beach than erosion, is the city's battle against it.

Beach erosion has been an issue in Virginia Beach since 1946, according to Carl Thoren, assistant city engineer. During that year, the United States Army Corps of Engineers was called in by city council after discovering that the beach had completely washed away, exposing a layer of sticky clay.

Restoration began in 1953

"The beach, as we think of it today," said Thoren, "was relatively small in size; it consisted only of a Beach Borrough, which just ran from about Rudee Inlet to 49th Street, and it never had any regular, proper sand management.

"Following the Army's study, the first official restoration of the Beach began in 1953. It was then that Congress approved federal funds for the city." Since then, proper sand management has been carried on annually.

Thoren defines erosion as the continual wearing away of land through natural forces, or in this case the beach, by waves and tidal actions on the shoreline.

'Hotel owners could be devastated'

"What erosion means to the local residents," said

Thoren, "is that without some kind of regular sand renourishment, the resort strip would cease to exist. Hotel and motel owners would be devastated.

"Uncurbed erosion would completely eliminate the tourist industry, or at least much of it; and of course, erosion would have a severe impact on the recreational activities in the area."

Other areas affected by erosion

Virginia Beach's resort strip is not the only local area affected by erosion. Sandbridge, and beaches along the Chesapeake Bay also suffer from disintegration; and for private beach home owners it is a constant struggle.

"Let's not forget that Virginia Beach is not the only

"Candbridge is slowly eroding away, and it is a real headache for the property and home owners whose lotlines extends down to the water.

"They don't receive any federal assistance, although many have sought it.

"And, city council also feels that any action in the name of the sand preservation for the private home owners, should be brought about by them."

It come and it goes

But while erosion is washing away beaches in some areas the displaced sand increases the supply of sand on

"Some beaches along the Chesapeake Bay are ex-periencing areas of sand accession, "Thoren said, "which results from sand at other beaches eroding away. In other words, while some are diminishing, some

"In 50 years of accession, some areas will gain. But historically, over longer spans of time such as hundreds of years, evidence indicates that the entire shoreline is eroding. Everyplace where water and land meet, water will always wear the land away."

Keeping up with erosion

Although Thoren says he's "unsure" how Virginia Beach compares to other coastline cities in the erosion category, he said the city is keeping up with the erosion lem.

"It's fair to say we're keeping up with erosion" Thoren said, "but you have to remember that erosion cannot be stopped. It can only be delayed for indefinate periods of time.

"We try to keep pace with the erosion problem by our city and state sponsored sand renourishment program which began in 1953. Since it began, however, we may have lost several thousand yards of sand, but it is inperceivable to the human eye. But, keep in mind we could have lost a lot more if the program hadn't existed."

The Sand is protected

Ouantities of sand are ensured at the beach by or-Quantities of sand are ensured at the beach by ordinances, and because of the renourishment programs. Both measures, according to Thoren, are effective.

"I think people all over Virginia Beach now realize that we are serious about the sand laws," Thorne, said, "and that we enforce it very strickly.

"For this reason very little sand is removed from either public or private beaches."

The erosion situation in Virginia Beach is the responsibility of the gubernatorially appointed Virginia Beach erosion commission, Hugh Kichen, president.

Last year its budget was $1 million, which is usually funded 70% by the city, and 30% by state funds, according to Thoren.

The commission is allocated funds on the basis of the amount of cubic yards of sand dumped on the

"Usually we receive between $700,000 and $1 million every two years."

Multi-million dollar plan set

Long range erosion control plans include a $37 million program designed to protect the coastline against erosion and hurricanes. The price is as goted in 1978.

'Currently there is a federal Corps of Engineers project in the advanced engineering and design stages," said Thoren, "designed to rebuild the entire beach from Rudee Inlet to 89th Street.

"The program, caled the Virginia Beach Erosion Control and Hurricane Protection Project, is projected to begin initial construction in 1988.

"The city is very happy about it, and proud of it. It is similar to a project now being conducted in Miami. Congress approved the city's request for the project in 1970, but it has taken eight years just to receive the funds to begin planning it. Construction is still a long way off."

The beach will get bigger

Thorne said that in addition to the erosion control and hurricane protection project, annual sand renourishment will also be carried on, but there will be more beach then to cover with extra sand.

"The plan is to raise the elevation of the sand 10 feet at mean sea level," Thorne said, "which is about four of five feet higher than the existing water level.

"The sand will extend from the boardwalk out three hundred feet before it reaches the ocean. And, again, it is an excellent project because it helps calm a hurricane, and fights erosion.

"The only unfortunate thing that could happen now is for Congress to decide not to continue funding the project."

Will the clay every come back?

How long would it be until the beach washed away again if sand replenishment projects were stopped.

"We assume that without sand renourishment," Thoren said, "that the beach would eventually wash away again. But it would be a guess, by myself, or anyone, as to how long it would take to happen.

"As far as I know, before 1927 when the boardwalk was built, there was not even as much as a bucket of sand added to the beach."

Visitors to Virginia Beach's shores may cease to come, if beach sand is not replenished.

City council approves rezoning

"What happened to land use plan?"—Henley

By LEE CAHILL

As Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon approved rezonings which would permit 1611 residential units where 470 were allowed previously, Councilwoman Barbara Henley wondered whatever happened to the Comprehensive Land Use Plan which was endorsed by Council just a year ago.

One sentence from the Plan bothered her specially:
Those areas which lie south of the proposed alignment of False Cape Parkway but north of Princess Anne Road and Sandbridge Road and West of the Lago Mar subdivision should be developed in single-family detached residential use at an average density of two dwelling units per acre. "Why is that sentence there?" she asked as Council seemed headed toward approval of a petition which did not conform to the Plan.

She said later that the 1611 units okayed Monday and the 2000 units in the R. G. Moore track in the Princess Anne and Kempsville Boroughs which will be before Council next week represent a lot of units.

"If we're going to expect our courts to honor our plan we're going to have to start honoring it ourselves," she said. She said she thought the public was at the point of wanting to know what the plan is. "We have got something the public views in one light and council in another light...I thought we were going to give considerable weight to these applications."

As for the Courthouse-Sandbridge corridor, she said,

"we can hang it up. I don't see how we can impose it another property owner."

She said that transportation was the crux of the land plan. The density recommended depended on whether the roads could handle the resulting traffic. Since the plan was prepared, both state and federal road funds have been withdrawn so that city planning director Robert Scott has been directed to revamp the Comprehensive Plan to conform to a more modest road improvement plan.

Henley and Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf voted against the rezonings requested in all three petitions which were disimilar in many respects. Each was approved by a vote of 8-2 and Mayor Patrick L.

Standing was absent.

In the third petition, Oceanside Enterprises, Inc.,

was granted a change of zoning from AG-2 Agricultural District on 17.16 acres and from Ag-1 Agriculture on a 32-acre parcel to R-5 Residential on the east side of Seaboard Road, north of Princess Anne Road in the Princess Anne Borough.

The existing zoning allows 49 homes while the proposed zoning allows 145 single-family homes. The Planning Commission recommended approval and the planning staff recommended denial because the "proposed density is incompatible for the existing and recommended a land use pattern."

After Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr. moved that the petition be approved, Councilman Donald Merrick offered a substitute motion to deny on the grounds that the application did not comply with the Comprehensive Plan, because the roads were not adequate and there were no immediate plans for roads improvement to serve the area. His motion lost by a 6-4 vote (Councilman Reid Ervin voted in favor with Merrick, Henley and Oberndord, but when the original motion was considered the two councilmen voted in favor. Councilman John A. Baum said that Council does not (See A page 10)

UVA slights Virginians

By DAVID WOODROOF

College and university presidents are well paid in this state. It was recently announced that the presidents of some institutions receive annual compensation in excess of $80,000 a year.

University of Virginia president Frank Hereford is one of these very well paid college presidents. Well paid by Virginia taxpayers.

But many are beginning to wonder if this is fair. It would seem more equitable, they say, if states like New Jersey, Connecticut, . New York. Pennsylvannia and Maryland would kick in toward Hereford's salary. Afterall UVA provides inexpensive educations for so very many out-of-state students in the northeast corridor.

For years the cream of this state's high school scholars and athletes have been forced to go elsewhere because of UVA's long standing admissions policy that freezes them out because so many spots are set aside for out-of-admissions policy that spurns first rate local talent for second rate students and athletes from out of state.

Whatever the intentions, UVA's admissions policies have succeeded only in achieving a national reputation as a "cushion college" for

Should anyone doubt UVA's cushion college status just talk to guidance counselors at the nation's better high and prep schools. They make no bones about it.

The absurdity of UVA's admissions policy that favors so many out-of-state students over first rate in-state high school graduates is widely seen on the academic side.

It is just as true in athletics where the admissions policy's glaring shortcomings cannot be as easily hidden.

Take the UVA football program, over the past 25 years, the pation's worst among major

This year, for instance, UVA will give football scholarships to only four Virginians.

Is this anomaly because the state of Virginia doesn't produce players good enough or smart enough to play for UVA? Of course not.

Every year, the nation's most successful colleges benefit significantly from Virginia talent.

Some say most of Virginia's top high school athletes now avoid UVA because of its long standing reputation as a loser. In many cases this is true. And its just as true that UVA's cushion college reputation is responsible for many fo today's top in-state scholars decision to go elsewhere.

UVA now finds itself a pathetic example of the academic and athletic equivalent of what cam first, the chicken or the egg.

And while UVA policy makers continue to find egg on their faces, taxpayers are getting the bird; and an increasing number are sick and tired of eating crow-especially when they have to pay for it.

Give us sand

Keep the dirt

By GREG GOLDFARB

Which is worst?

Losing Virginia Beach's beautiful white sand by a natural phenomenon: Erosion. Or, by dumping over 200,000 tons of granular, sandy-like, brown stuff on it? (See The Virginia Beach Sun, April 4 issue).

Erosion can't be controlled, that's obvious. In fact, there's about as much chance of controlling ocean tides and currents as controlling the tropical tradewinds.

City Council should be highly, commended how-ever, for its sand ever, for its sand replenishment projects, and future hurricane protection project. But after all the hard work, that has been done so far, and years of extensive p ning, why dump that camel colored borrow pit sand over the real thing?

Goldfarb

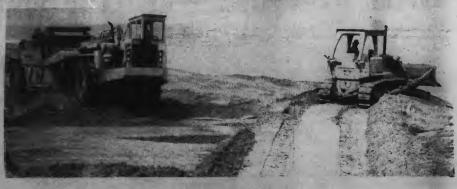

It's true, the city will save thousands of dollars an-It's true, the city will save thousands of dollars an-nually with its acquitition of a half-million dollar borrow pit, located off Birdneck Road. The city estimates that the pit will provide sand, or in my opinion a poor substitute for it, for the next eight years at the same price commercial contractors were charging per year for their sand services.

As usual, the almighty dollar comes into play; and the city has decided to sacrifice the aesthics of the beach for money in the bank

In a recent Sun Survey, most participants, questioned oming off the beach onto the boardwalk, expressed feelings of disorientation.

"I thought I was in Virginia Beach because of the seagulls, and the breaking waves," one visitor from New York said, "but after I got a close look at that so called sand, I thought I was in Texas."

(See SUNBATHE page 7)

Big machinery was used this spring to spread the pseudo-sand over the beach.

Get ready, 'cause here they come!

After a cool, early morning ride to the oceanfront these four Virginia Beach residents are ready for a day of fun

At the driver's seat is 19 year old Anne Dougherty, who will receive her associate degree in business from the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College this summer. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dougherty, Anne enjoys many sports, including swimming and running, and plans to go to New York this fall to pursue a career in modeling.

Riding shotgun is Chris Rawls, a 24 year old fashion co-ordinator with a local clothing store. Originially from Norfolk, Chris enjoys snow, and water skiing, reading, and modeling. She says she likes Virginia Beach because its size is between that of a big city and a small town.

Dressed in a cowboy hat and boots, Lesa Rumsey, 26, works as a bartender in a local bar, and enjoys competitive body building. She plays sports, including racquetball, and softball, and actively practices ballet. In addition to the local change of seasons, Lesa considers Virginia Beach a "versatile" area, and attends many cultural and theatre

On the bumper is Ellen Story, the 18 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Story, Jr. Ellen is a rising sophomore at Old Dominion University, studying business.

She is a Beach native, and enjoys bicycling, photography, surfing, and dancing. She hopes to someday go to New York to model.

The 1974 El Dorado Cadilliac was borrowed from 20 year old Virginia Beach resident, and active Jaycee member, John R. Williams.

Williams, president of Global Security Specialists Inc., Virginia Beach, said this collector's Caddy is one of two of them he owns. The car, with 83,000 miles on it, is valued at $6 to 8,000 now, and was bought for $14,000.

They stretch north and south to a golden infinity, over a hundred and twenty miles of some of the most beautiful beaches in America.

Here are resort beaches, secluded beaches, tiny islands, and seaside gardens. And here's Virginia Beach, longest resort beach in the world, with a summertime art show along the boardwalk, nightclubs and fine restaurants, and the place where the earliest permanent settlers touched the shores of the New World.

When you visit Virginia's beaches this summer, getting there is half the fun. You can stop off on the way at Kings Dominion for exciting rides and shows. You can cross magnificent mountains of Southwest Virginia, like the Indians of centuries past. You can linger awhile in Colonial Williamsburg or Old Town Alexandria, and get to know the fascinating world of the eighteenth century.

Wherever you begin, whatever you visit in Virginia, you will always be drawn to the sea. Back to the beaches where visitors have been coming for almost four hundred years. And where, like the ocean waves, they keep returning again and again.

Virginia is for lovers.

Sunbathe? In the dirt?

Another local survey participant expressed other feelings.

"I think we ought to take a load of it and dump it in one of the council members back yard, and see how their kid reacts," said one Beach resident.

Fortunately, the entire length of the beach is not covered with the pseudo-sand, and, it may have a redeeming feature in its price tag. But, how many people who have traveled from as far away as Canada, or New York, will enjoy spending their vacation on a dirt road?

SONSHINE GIRL

Carol says she's proud of her awards.

Keeping fit is important, Carol says, for both the body and the mind.

Health Spa winner

Suffolk native Carolyn McInnis is alive and well

A seven year Virginia Beach resident, this week's SUNshine girl Carolyn McInnis, is originally from Suffolk. Her mother, Mrs. Virginia Smith, still lives there and is a retail saleslady.

Carolyn works for a local hotel as a desk clerk, a position she's held for the last year and a half. Other jobs she's held include styling hair with a local salon; working as an appliance service receptionist; a clothes salesman; and working for General Electric.

Enjoys many hobbies

But when Carolyn is not working, she enjoys bathing in the sun, snow and water skiing, riding her bicycle on the boardwalk; working out; canoeing, and whitewater rafting.

"I enjoy the beach," he said, "and the people at the beach.

"I have many friends here now, and there are always plenty of things to do."

She says Virginia Beach is not like Suffolk, especially considering the local number of nightclubs and restaurants.

"My favorite club is Rogue's," she said, "and favorite restaurant is The Fisherman's Restaurant, in the Holiday Inn, oceanfront.

Her favorite music is disco, and loves listening to Michael Jackson.

Miss European Health Spa

Carolyn was elected Miss European Health Spa, 1979, for the region. The competition was held last summer at Hilltop, and included a fiedl of eight other competitors from the Beach, Roanoke, and Richmond.

"They were mainly looking at body tone," she said, "and how well the body is formed.

"I work out with weights, but no excessively. The spa picked me to be in the competition, which included walking, and modeling a one-piece swimsuit."

"I think the reason I won is because the meet was held at Hilltop, and I had a lot of support from the local people. That made me try that much harder.

"But I'll not compete again this year. I'd rather retire a winner."

have enough work sessions to study things like the comprehensive Plan.

Attorney Al Etheridge representing the prospective purchasers, of which he is one, said that there is a need in the city for an affordable house and that "the burden should be shared by all sections of the city not just Kempsville." He said that's why he originally asked for A-1 (apartment) zoning, but changed to R-5 when he realized A-1 would not be granted. He said with the less dense R-3 zoning it would cost $25,000 to buy a lot, homes would have to cost $90,000 or higher and the area was not suitable for 100,000 homes. One neighbor was concerned that he would be put out of his house by high-priced homes, he said.

He said the overall density would be two units per Dean Estes, representing the residents of Farmers Court, presented a petition signed by 53 in opposition. He charged that the applicant "opened a bag of tricks at the Planning Commission. He questioned the way the application was changed from A-1 to R-5 24 hours before the Planning Commission meeting. He said the facilities are insufficient to handle the load and that the city would have to bear the cost of improving Seaboard Road. He said that the proposition was uncontrolled and speculative.

Mrs. Joyce Selmon of the Back Bay Civic League, and Augustus Brown Jr., of Seaboard Road, also opposed the petition.

Mrs. Henley then remarked that the section pertaining to this area in the Comprehensive Plan had been "bandied about."

Council on Nov. 19 approved the application of DeFord, Ltd., for a change of zoning from R-5 Residential District to R-8 Residential District on a 74.62-acre parcel north of Newtown Road at the end of Broad meadows Boulevard, Bayside Borough.

Council had placed a condition on the rezoning that the developer participate in the cost of construction of Newtown Road. DeFord's attorney Grover Wright challenged the condition in Circuit Court and won, but the application was returned to Council or reconsideration. It was approved without the condition this time. Educational personnel

Employee, administered honored by Beach group

Alice P. Ege and Dr. Benjamin I. Troutman, Jr., were named the educational office employee and educational administrator of the year, respectively, by members of the Virginia Beach Association of Educational Office Personnel at their tenth annual Boss' Night banquet, held recently at the Commodore Club.

Ege, the bookkeeper at Princess Anne High School, has been active in the VBAEOP since its beginning in 1962. She served as the group's first president and has been the corresponding secretary and scholarship chairman of the state's association.

Troutman, principal of Plaza Junior High, has served with Virginia Beach Public Schools for eight years. Before becoming principal at Plaza two years ago, he was assistant principal there for six years.

At the banquet, the VBAEOP also awarded the Lennie Johnson college scholarship to Starletta Yvette Williams, a senior at Kellam High. Ms. Williams' mother, Mary, is the school secretary at Seatack Elementary, and her father, Waverly, teaches at Windson Oaks Elementary.

dsor Oaks Elementary.

Three association members were recognized for completing the Educational Secretarial Certificate program at Tidewater Community College. Robert Gourley, Anita LaBahn, and Frances McClenny were officially designated Certified Educational Secretaries. Grouley works as bookkeeper at Brandon Junior High, LaBahn is secretary at Windsor Oaks Elementary, and McClenny is secretary at Newtown Road Elementary.

The association also installed its 1980-81 officers at the banquet. They are: Roberta Gourley, president; Dorothy Hughes (secretary at the division's guidance and counseling office), vice president; Rosa Cohen (secretary at Kempsville High), recording secretary; Helen Parker (secretary, Court House Elementary), corresponding secretary; and Anita LaBahn, treasurer.

the developer would participate voluntarily, which is the only way it is permitted by law, Wright said, "No, we'll have nothing to do with building Newtown Road." He said there was no account for the road an no plan to relocate the road. He said that he did not believe that when a road went by a landowner's property he should pay cash to the city. The city had required money be held in escrow for the future construction of the road.

Hanbury maintained the city did have plans for the road and that it was expected to be under construction by 1984 or 1985.

Merrick noted that the state was cutting back on road funds and that the city would have to shoulder more of the cost. The city's share in State road projects has been 100 percent.

When some confusion arose over what type of action Council was expected to take on the application, city attorney Dale Bimson said that the property was still considered R-5 and "you can do what you want with

Wright said, "If you want the property to be R-5 I'll go back to court."

Holland moved that Council reaffirm its a previous action and rezone the property to R-8 with the one condition which was later found illegal by the Court,

Mrs. Henley said she was under the impression that Council would have a report from the State on a road funding. "It's vital to have that report first."

Holland said that if the road is a State project the amount of money the city would have to pay would be relatively small-10 percent.

The new zoning would permit 446 duplex where 223

single-family homes are permitted now.

In the next application Lakeside Construction Corporation was granted rezoning of 229.4 acres to R-6 Residential District, 73.5 acres to R-5 Residential Disrict and 2.3 acres to B-2 Community-Business District. The existing zoning allows 198 single-family homes and commercial development while the proposed zoning allows 1,020 single-family homes and commercial development. Property involved totals 305.20 acres east of Oceana Boulevard and north of both Princess Anne and Sandbridge Roads in the Princess Anne Borough.

The property was changed from R-3, (18.2 acres), B-2 (11 acres), AG-1 (34.8 acres), AG-1 (26.5 acres), AG-1 (2.3 acres; B-2 (165.4 acres), and R-4, (47 acres).

Council also granted Lakerside's request for a conditional use permit for a narrow pit on an 87-acre parcel east of Oceana Boulevard and north of Painters Lane near the site.

The applicant agreed to participate in the construction of Ferrell Parkway if the project is under way in Wright, who represented W. W. Reasor, Lakeside's principal owner, said that the developer's participation will make Ferrell Parkway a reality.

Mrs. Henley said Council should be more certain what it's going to do seven years from now.

Directing his comments to Mrs. Henley, Wright replied, "If a single-family plan cannot satisfy you, nothing can."

Lakeside will pay $59 per linear foot the cost when the application was first presented foot, the cost when the application was first presented while the cost now is $87 a linear foot. Mrs. Henley said that in seven years it will be more.

Wright replied, "if you're asking for a blank check, I'm not going to give it to you."

Lakeside will also reserve for the road 12 acres of property which the developer values at $600,000.

Hanbury also explained that the $87 does not represent the actual cost of a linear foot in a four-lane divided highway which is what Ferrell Parkway is expected to be, but the cost for a four-lane street. The developer will participate in two lanes of the highway.

Joyce Selmon of the Back Bay Civic League, said that the rezoning "might weaken or rend the comprehensive Plan worthless."

Baum said that he and Mrs. Selmon were "together on trying to conserve agricultural land, but "we don't have a leg to stand on with water and sewer all around." He said it was worse to have farm land surrounded by residences.

Allen W. Fulmer, chairman of the trustees of lagomar, asked Council to reschedule the hearing to a night meeting so that all of the citizens interested could

McCoy said that it was not possible to schedule everything for night meetings.

Mrs. Henley's complaint was that the item was not advertised. She said she did not know that the item would be heard until she received her agenda package

Thursday. She said that city attorney Dale Bimson said that the law requires only one ad before the Planning Commission hearing and one before Council hearing. This was done the first time the item was before council so the legal requirements were considered met.

Mrs. Henley pointed out that there was a special ad in the Sun and the Beacon advertising the DeFord application and that "it was poor judgement not to follow this policy" on the Lakeside hearing.

She also said that since Ferrell Parkway ran right through the Lakeside property she was prepared to approve the rezoning requested north of Ferrell Parkway in compliance with the comprehensive Plan, but since the motion included the entire tract she had to vote against all of it.

The Planning Commission and Planning Staff recommended approval.

Water costs more

Starting July 1, Virginia Beach water customers will be paying approximately 12 cents more for each 100 gallons of water.

City manager George L. Hanbury told City Council Monday afternoon at an informal session that the City of Norfolk has increased its wholesale price of water to Virginia Beach from 52.7 cents to 63.7 cents per 1000 gallons. Before last year when the price was raised to 52.7 cents, the cost had been 48.5 cents since 1973.

Residential users now pay 94.2 cents for 1,000 gallons of water. In passing the approximate 11.8 percent increase to customers, the city would charge $1.06. Hanbury recommended, however, an additional two cents to offset losses from leakage which amounts to approximately $80,000 a year.

Hanbury will bring in an oridnance recommending the 12 cent increase in the coming month, he said.

Councilman Clarence A. Holland said he wanted to Gavs deny vandalism

The gay community has denied any responsibility for an act of vandalism on the property of the Tabernacle Baptist Church on the evening of June 7 or morning of June 8.

A message, spray painted on the exterior wall of the church, criticized the position of the church and Virginia Beach Vice Mayor j. Henry McCoy Jr. in opposing the presence of the gay newspaper, Our Own Community Press, in the Virginia Beach Public Library.

The message was signed "Gay Organization for Deliverance" (GOD).

Gay spokesman Jim Early Monday afternoon released a statement asserting that "neither the staff of Our Own nor the Unitarian-Universalist Gay Community which publishes Our Own has had any part in this destructive act. Neither Our Own nor the UUGC has which took credit for the spray-painted message,' according to Early.

"The UUGC deplores this and all similar acts of violence," Early said, "and it is clearly not in the interests of either the gay newspaper or the gay community for individuals or groups to engage in such behavior. It is our hope that the authorities will very shortly apprehend the and prosecute the vandals, and we pledge our full support and cooperation in this effort."

The newspaper was distributed from the public library until church and parent groups objected. It was withdrawn from the library pending the final decision of Early noted that the gay newspaper and the Virginia Beach Library had been the subject of a half-hour television program at 7:30 p.m. June 7 when Tabernacle Baptist Church pastor, the Rev. Rodney Bell, Dr. McCoy and UUGC members Gary Hankins and Dr. Robert Scott appeared on WAVY-TV's "Inside Area 10" program.

The Piland Construction Company, Inc. has been awarded the contract to renovate the Old Coast Guard Station for $112,000 the low bid of ten.

It was one of three contracts awarded by Virginia Beach Council Monday afternoon which were considerably lower than the estimated cost indicating downward trend in the overall economy.

The estimate on the Station was $162,500

The other two contracts were awarded to W. R. Hall Jr. for Lynnhaven Colony Phase 3, Section 2, sanitary sewer facilities project, for $223,506, low bid of ten, compared to the estimate of $246,000, and to Utility Builders, Inc., for the Woodhurst and Thunderbird Drive sanitary sewerage facilities project for $110,558.
75, low bidder of 11 compared to the estimate of $180,000.

The Historical Society will operate a museum in the Coast Guard Station for which they will charge an will be located on the first floor and open to the public free, city manager George L. Hanbury said.

The entire project, which included relocation of the Station, will cost close to $200,000, he said.

The museum will exhibit nautical artifacts.

City awarded for volunteerism

Virginia Beach is one of seven cities in the United States which received a national award recognizing the city's efforts to promote volunteerism.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing accepted the award Monday at the 48th annual session of the United States Conference of Mayors in Seattle, Wash.

Supported by the Xerox Corporation, the volunteer program was sponsored by the Alliance for volunteerism and the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Mayor Standing said, "It is a special tribute to the many volunteers in our community who have made our program a success."

Other winners were Aurora, Colo.; Evanston, Ill.; Kettering, Ohio; New York, New York; Phoenix, Ariz., and Union City, Calif. An independent panel of judges selected the winners after reviewing applications from more than 50 cities.

More than 6,000 citizens serve city agencies and the city Council in voluntary positions.

More hospitalization approved

A $90,000 price increase in Blue Cross-Blue Shield hospitalization insurance for city employees has been announced after the 1980-81 budget has been approved.

As a result, city manager George L. Hanbury told Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon, the employee share will have to be increased by approximately $5.

He said that he has asked Blu Cross-Blue Shield to budget in the future.

Atlantic avenue parking

Somehow confusion still exists over parking on

Even City Councilman J. Curtis Payne got a ticket and according to Councilman R. L. Riggs, he was among 3,000 who have received tickets since the city's new Atlantic Avenue parking ordinance went into effect three weeks ago.

City manager George L. Hanbury said that there is a conflict between what's on the meters on the west side of Atlantic and what's on the signs, but that he planned

With parking meters operating between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. he said he had planned to cover the meters during the no-parking hours. Instead Councilwoman Barbara Henley suggested signs be placed on the meters in addition to no-parking signs delineating the hours. In the meantime, the police have been instructed to hold back on the tickets.

Council, by a vote of 9-1 approved the ordinance covering the signs. Councilman Riggs voted against the ordinance and Mayor Patrick L. Standing was absent.

Snow costs money
Virginia Beach's 50 inches of snow this year was responsible for most of the $355,000 overrun in the Public Works budget.

The budget provides only $100,000 for snow removal based on an average annual snowfall of 7.5 inches. This year, personnel and material costs for snow removal exceeded $500,000.

Council Monday afternoon appropriated the additional $355,000.

Cabbies now 18 years old

The age limit for cab drivers in Virginia Beach has been lowered from 21 to 18 years.

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon

approved the ordinance changing the age limit and also deleting two reasons for revoking or suspending the license of a public vehicle driver. They are purchasing alcoholic beverages of any kind for passengers or tolerating any disorderly conduct in the car or taking any fare to a place for ilicit purposes.

City manager George L. Hanbury said that these measures cannot be practically enforced by officials of the Police Department.

Money appropriated

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon authorized the appropriation of $76,394 of the city's $2,354,000 Fourth Year Community Block Grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Educational grant awarded

An additional $6,000 grant award has been made by the State Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation to the Virginia Beach Mental Health Rehabilitation Unit (the Beach House).

The total grant is now $35,740 which will be used for operating expenses and additions and alterations to the building.

SUNshine Girl Hopes To Teach

The sights in Virginia Beach are terrific! And for only a quarter, Beach native Nanci Traweek, 22, gazes at many of them through the long range binoculars mounted to the Virginia Beach fishing pier at 15th and Atlantic. Nanci, who has worked at La Vogue, Hilltop, for the last two years, says she likes Virginia Beach because, "I've always lived here. I've got a lot of friends at the Beach and there is plenty to do to keep busy. Plus, I enjoy being with my family, and sometimes skirting down to Cape Hatteras for the weekend." A First Colonial High School graduate, 1976, Nanci is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Traweek. She and her family live in the Birdneck Point section of Virginia Beach.

Almost $2 million in 1979

Hilltop ABC store leads Beach in sales

By GREG GOLDFARB

The Law states that there is no limit on the quantity of alcoholic beverages one may legally buy in Virginia, and Beach residents sure seem to know the:

In 1979, Virginia Beach Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) stores retail sales totaled over $8.2 million for the city's six locations.

Leading the field of six other stores in Virginia Beach, is the Hilltop ABC store, with $1.9 million in sales reported last year. Only 15 other stores in the state, out of 259, had total sales greater than the Hilltop store. On the low end of the scale is the Fairfield Shopping Center store, which is relatively new, with $821,645.

No booze buying trends

But, booze buying trends are not constant, nor predictable according to State ABC public relations spokesman, Charles Davis.

"We don't make a big fuss over money figures," Davis said, "because it's a fact of life; and Hilltop must be where the business is.

"The store is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and night sales and tourist sales add greatly to the revenue

"We are gratified to know that we are meeting the needs of the community as a result of our thorough marketing analysis."

The money collected by the ABC stores goes into a state fund, but part of it is channeled back down to the individual cities.

"Revenue made by the ABC stores," Davis said, "goes into the department's general fund account, which goes toward paying the operating expenses of Hilltop ABC store manager, Robert Morris.

According to Davis, Virginia Beach can expect one or two more ABC stores within the next five years.

"We constantly analyze our marketing system,"
Davis said, "and we'll open, enlarge, or close stores as we see the need."

But, it seems sure that the Hilltop store has no need to worry about its future. Convenient parking and masses of people are good signs for the store's ability. "There's no doubt about it," Davis said, "that the parking areas, and population are important variables

Bicycling dangerous on boardwalk

Although Virginia Beach law enforcement officials have not received any official complaints concerning the recent boardwalk bicycling incident, the issue is likely to Beach resident Ronald F. Vadala, said the scene was brutal and overplayed.

Some members of City Council are publically questioning the rigid en-forcement of the Beach's bicycles ordinances, and why an account of the event was reported by the area's major newspaper a month after the fact. Photos were supplied by a Canadian

And, as police authorities are trying to remain silent about the incident, City Manager George Hanbury has requested the police department's internal affairs division to submit a written report to him concerning the controversial activity.

A costly boardwalk ride

In brief, indications are that Vadala was guilty of riding his bicycle on the boardwalk without having a proper license. He is quoted as saying he had recently learned his wife had cancer, and was riding to relax.

Vadala volunteered to walk his bleycle home, and eliminate the charge, but he was issued a summons anyway. At this point, he reportedly resisted physicial arrest, and attempted to seize an officer's gun. Consequently, he was beaten and maced in the face and head, and taken to the second precinct, where, by newspaper accounts, he was harassed.

Questions relative to the aforementioned actions are

•Were the actions of the policemen justified, or

•Why did 30 days elapse before the story broke in the local newspapers? And, did the Canadian businessman have any financial interest in the manifestation of the

Do Virginia's Beach's bicycle laws, which allow a man to be beaten for not having a license, need to be reviewed?

Council talks to The Sun

A Sun telephone survey of six of 11 council members who were asked if they supported Hanbury's call for more information yielded the following reactions to the hordwalk incident:

R. L. "Buddy" Riggs, Virginia Beach Borough: "All I know is what I read in the papers, but the way I see it, if the man had conformed to the request of the officer, and signed the summons, the incident would have been

"The man broke the law, no matter how big or small in size he was. The officer was correct in what he did, but, I think we should have in investigation to see what

who took the pictures of the event have any monetary interest in the story?

Mrs. Barbara Murden Henley, Pungo Borough:

"Yes, we need to know exactly what took place. I expect a full explantation by next week.

"The newspaper article didn't give a full report of the police department's account of the arrest. We didn't really hear their side, and we need to know what was it about this bicyclist that warranted such dramatic action on the behalf of the police?

"I know some people are opposed to the registering of bicycles, but I don't even have a bicycle, and I wouldn't mind paying a dollar to legally ride it. But what I wonder, also, is why the newspaper waited so long before publishing the article?"

John A. Baum, Blackwater Borough: "We need a John A. Baum, Blackwater Borough: "We need a laws need to be reviewed.

"I understand the man was under a lot of stress at the time of his arrest, and it seems that there were too many quick reactions on behalf of the man, and the police, for such a minor indicident."

Dr. Clarence A. Holland, Bayside Borough: "It's just natural for the city manager to ask for a written report, especially after such an activity receives such public attention. That is to say we want answers when Beach employees, such as the police conduct themselves in such a way that is not proper procedure.

"I think Hanbury is obliged to ask for an explanation of a newspaper story which reports the police as acting brutally."

Mrs. Meyera E. Oberndorf, at large: "I certainly support the City Manager in asking for a written report when accusations and allegations are made against the Virginia Beach Police Department.

"The article did seem to make the incident seem brutal."

The Virginian Pilot City Editor Jim Raper said the article was reported professionally, and without foreign influence:

"We did what we thought was a very thorough investigation of the incident, and looked at the story very carefully before publishing it; and that takes time.

What's it all mean?

Right now, there are no easy answers to the troublesome questions relative to the boardwalk

The police aren't talking, yet council is asking questions, and the newspaper is defending itself.

It will not be until after an investigation is conducted before we understand what is the difference between upholding the law, and abusing it.

Our own referendum?

Pastor Rodney L. Bell and his congregation stood aghast but ready to defend their pastor and "the faith" as they read the "Writing on the Wall" of the Tabernacle Baptist Church. Out of the darkness it appeared, nacle Baptist Church. Out of the darkness it appeared, obviously written there between Saturday evening, June 7, and Sunday morning, June 8, 1980.

The "Writing" said: "The TBC Sanhedrin has condemned the gay. Will Pilot (sic!) McCoy wash his hands? Will the mob decide through referendum?"

From the outset, two sharply defined life-styles have closed ranks and joined battle to the bitter end. Unless the liberals have completely rewritten our history text books, there are still people who recall that our country was founded on Godly principles in 1776, and that it was our Fathers' intention that these principles continue to rule our country and our communities in 1980.

The preachers and Godly men led the battle for liberty and independence from England, and against tyranny; and I pray that they continue to lead in this battle to preserve our society from the degrading and degenerating influence of what is generally called homosexuality, and what the Bible calls a crooked and

The "Writing on the Wall", in essence, claims a mar-tyrdom paralleling Jesus on the cross that is offensive in the extreme. Jesus was without sin but gave His life for us, even the homosexuals.

Dr. McCoy, who is the "Pilot" in the "Writing", is certainly to be commended for standing by his convictions to date, and I don't think he'll be washing his hands of the issue. Since the "mob", the people of this community, have already publicly expressed most clearly their objections to the recruiting efforts of this questionable group concerning the presence of their paper "Our Own" in the public library, a referendum may well be the next logical step, (which is certainly preferrable to the destruction of property).

Let me remind Mrs. Judith Krug, of the Right to Read Foundation, and the Office for intellectual Freedom, that certain facts should be kept in mind: 1. that the U.S. Supreme Court has returned to the com-munities the right of decision on obscenity; 2. that sexual preference is not included in the ordinary sense of civil rights, such as ethnic origin, but only the fact of being male or female; and 3. that the family is no less in danger of destruction by degenerative forces in 1980 than it was from the beginning in the Garden.

The "Writing on the Wall" at TBC can only serve to condemn these blind leaders by their own twisted words.

Sheltered workshop needs help

Dear Editor:

The Virginia Beach Sheltered Workshop Association will cease to operate the sheltered workshop program in the "Old Miller's Building" at 3432 Virginia Beach Boulevard on June 30, 1980. The decision to do so was based on a recent enforcement of zoning requirements denying the workshop's capability to support its production program.

The type and volume of work necessary to employ thirty or more handicapped people can not be accommodated in the present facility.

Consequently, the Association Board of Directors will devote all its resources to raising the funds needed to relocate the workshop to an industrial area appropriate to the goal of providing meaning ful employment for the handicapped of Virginia Beach.

During this period of planning and development the Virginia Beach MH/MR Services Board, through a new Corporation named Community Alternatives, will provide continuing day services for the handicapped.

The V.B.S.W.A. intends to re-establish the workshop as soon as possible and your continuing interest and Support will be appreciated.

Tuttle receives doctorate

Georgia Anne Tuttle, 972 valedictorian of Bayside High School in Virginia Beach, received the degree of Doctorate of Medicine recently from Tufts University School of Medicine in Boston, Mass.

Georgia, the daughter of Lurline F. Tuttle, presently of Southwest Har-bor, Maine and the late George F. Tuttle is the granddaughter of the late Elizabeth Soukup, all formerly of Hedgerow Dr. in Virginia Beach.

Following graduation, she will do an internship at the Faulkner Hospital in Boston and will then begin a 3 year residency in dermatology at Dartmouth College in Hanover, New Hampshire.

Generation after generation

"I've been coming to Virginia Beach off and on for 20 years," said retired Richmond businessman J. W. Guenther, "and I'll continue to come back because I love it here."

Guenther, who was spending last week in the Halifax Hotel, on Atlantic Avenue, said his wife Dorothy has been coming to the Beach longer than he has.

"Dorothy has been visiting Virginia Beach since she was a little girl," he said. "Now we bring our daughter Carol, and her husband William, and the grand-children John, 2 and Sarah, 6.

"Virginia Beach is not just to be enjoyed by one generation, but by generation after generation, after generation."

Guenther is reading "A Walk Across America," by Peter Jenkins, and said, "I was reading on the beach yesterday, but decided to come in today because of the gusty winds."

Treasures cites waste

Dear Editor:

Big bureaucracies and high inflation rates everyone talks about them, but few in high places attempt to do anything about them.

I would like to give what appears to be an example of unnecessary, duplicated expense. It is one, I believe, that would be eliminated if the people of Tidewater were to bring the necessary pressures to bear.

Presently, the City of Virginia Beach, as do other municipalities, funds and maintains a very efficient Water Billing and Collection System. Hampton Roads Sanitation District does likewise for its Sewage Treatment. I, as Treasurer of Virginia Beach, am a part of the Beach System and believe that Virginia Beach could do the job for H.R.S.D. without any significant increase in our cost of operation and assume our sister cities could do likewise.

Presently, the H.R.S.D.'s system is dependent upon receiving the City of Virginia Beach's water consumption figures on each account. They then must enter the information into their computer, calculate the bill, print it, mail it, receipt its payment and institute enforced collection procedures in cases of delinquencies. On the customer's side, there is dual billing, deposits, payment, postage, accounting and cut-off fees; not to mention the confusion in the user's mind between paying Sewer Maintenance to Virginia Beach and Sewage Treatment to H.R.S.D.

I maintain these duplications could be eliminated by incorporating the sewage treatment bills into our water bills. This obviously would create higher productivity within the city's system and an economy to the user.

This proposal, by itself, would in no way create any liability for the various cities. It merely answers the question: "If one system will do the job, why pay for two?" It is not my intent to criticize nor to be negative, but to advance a positive idea which, on the surface, appears to benefit everyone involved.

If the readers of your column agree, I suggest they express their thoughts on this page and drop a copy in the mail to me, John T. Atkinson, Treasurer, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23456. Should support of this idea be sufficient, I will endeavor to see that it is properly studied by the various agencies and entities involved, with a public report to follow.

Built 30 years ago, according to pier coowner Mildred Lachamy, the pier has been destroyed 10 times due to storms.

The Virginia Beach fishing pier extends out 980 feet from the boardwalk into 32 feet of water at high tide.

Lachamy said the pier fishing season, for her pier, lasts from about mid-April to October or November, depending on weather and water temperature.

Fish hold convention

Thoughts while Beach fishing

By PETER BLY

The casual, disinterested observer might think an angler is a lazy sort of fellow. After all, would an aggressive, active ambitious person sit for hours watching a thin thread of plastic ripple the water while waiting for a fish to swim by and take the bait?

That casual observer is guilty of a misconception that borders on gross and malicious libel. Virginia Beach fisherpersons are not lazy. Fishing is a lot of work. Hard work. And it takes a lot of thought. Deep

Of course, a lot of that deep thought goes into fishing channels, one might say. There are weighty problems to deal with. Basically, the fisherman must outthink the ome people fail to give fish the IQ that is their due. A fish is smart enough to play all sorts of tricks upon the angler. If a fish isn't hungry it won't rise to the bait. If it senses the least little human presence about the hors d'oeuvre, it will pass up the delicious tidbit and swim

Fish hold a daily conference at which they agree to swim only at certain elevations above the bottom. They change this every day solely to outthink the anglers. Thus, crappie may have been biting at 15 feet yesterday, but they won't be there tommorrow just as they were at still a different depth day before yesterday.

Our scaly friends meet weekly and arrange the menu

One Monday, for example, surface flies are the main meal. Tuesday, red worms. Wednesday, cheese. Thursday, minnows. Friday, well, everybody fasts. And so Mealtime is never at the same hour for fish. Every angler has a definite time when he knows the fish will be hungry. The trouble is the fish don't know this. When the menus are planned, fish also set the time when the meals will be served.

Fish are smart—everyone has heard of fish schools. The trouble is school is never held twice in the same place. Once the class dunce gets jerked off his perch on the bottom, school is out for the day.

the bottom, school is out for the day.

Fish know more about weather than some weathermen do. Fish never arrange picnics on nice days like people try to do. They wait until the weather is as miserable as it can get and then they all go out and see if they can catch a fisherman. Anglers who know this are often cold, wet, miserable and have their legal limit.

Those who casually observe anglers fail to realize all this. The poor souls will never know how much thought goes into fishing on the part of both fishermen and fish. And they will never know the satisfaction an angler has

And they will never know the satisfaction an angler has as he returns to his recreational vehicle with a nice string

Give the successful angler his due—he has proved he is smarter than the average fish!

Atkinson wants bike laws changed

By LEE CAHILL
The administrator of the Virginia Beach bicycle registration program wants to see it abolished.
In a statement to City Council Monday, John T. Atkinson, city treasurer and administrator of the bicycle program, said he rejected "all two-bit laws like this which would allow or permit someone to get his brains beaten out for noncompliance."
Virginia Beach police reportedly beat a Virginia Beach citizen when he failed to sign a summons issued because he had no bike license. The incident was approparanted by a Canadian tourist and reportedly photographed by a Canadian tourist and reportedly witnessed by others. At an informal session of Council Monday afternoon, city manager George L. Hanbury told Council he had asked the Police Department for a report of the incident.

With his letter recommending abolishment of the program, Atkinson submitted a report prepared by the Police Department recently on the bicycle registration

The report indicates, he said, that the existing program is "expensive, ineffective and unnecessarily hassles the residents and visitors to our city." When considered along with the beating incident, he said "it is overwhelming evidence that this goodie-two-shoes' law should be repealed immediately."

City Council created the law, he said, and has the responsibility for its abolishment.

In its place, Atkins on advocates a voluntary program which will give citizens the opportunity to use the police engraving machine to engrave their social security numbers on bikes. This way, the individual can always identify his property. If the individual elects to have the number registered with the police, he will be charged one dollar. Otherwise the police shouldn't be expected to search for lost bikes.

Any law has to be enforced, Atkinson said, and he did not know that the police were not using standard procedure in bringing the bike program violator into submission. The police, however, should not be put in a prediciament, where a petty law could lead to such ac-

The bicycle registration program was started in the arly 1970's. The cost of a license is one dollar, good for the entire life of the bike. Today the system contains approximately 15 years of files and as of March 1 there were 99,204 licenses on file.

According to the report, during 1979, 1,509 bicycle thefts were reported to the Police Department. The value was set at $46,583. A total of 607 bicycles valued at $18,737 were recovered and of these, 303, valued at $9,353, were returned to their owners.

The report stated the program is administratively cumbersome and probably contains obsolete and unusable information.

The cost of administering the program and the cost of enforcement far outstrips any revenues which are realized, Atkinson said.

The police department recommends a new bicycle registration program. The new program would register bicycles for a period of three years at an increased cost.

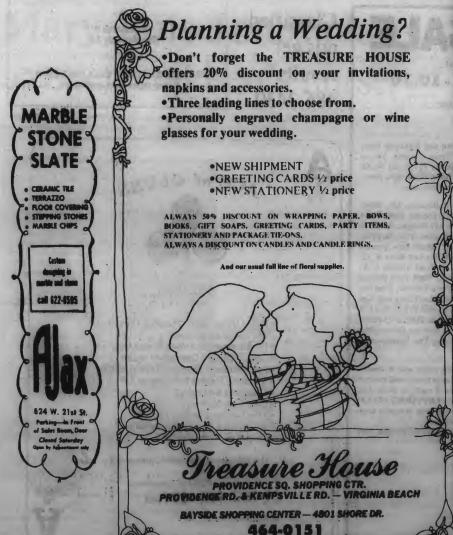

The new system would go into effect on Jan. 1 when current bicycle registration files would be purged.

New registrations would be kept on file for three years. When the Treasurer's office sends out city auto license registration information, bicycle registration information would be included. Recovered stolen bicycles will be a proceed to the purget. will be released to the owner only upon the presentation of a valid license or some impounding fee.

In Norfolk, bicycle registration is mandatory and continues for the life of the bicycle or until the ownership changes. Failure to comply with registration results in the impounding of the Bicycle by the police.

In Chesapeake registration is voluntary. Decals cost one dollar and are good for the life of the bicycle.

SONEOURE GIRL

In the lake near her apartment, Jane finds the ducks very friendly.

Mary Jane Jones plans to open children's nursery

Someday she hopes to open a nursery with her sister in Northumberland County, Va. But for now, SUNshine girl Mary Jane Jones, 20, is content studying elementary education at Virginia Wesleyan College and working as a breezeway waitress at the New Cavailer Hotel.

"It's great around here," the Heathsville native said, "I love the water, the beach, and the college.

"A friend of mine recommended Virginia Wesleyan to me because it was small, and close to the beach; and I'm sure glad she did."

Oil distributor's daughter

Jane is the daughter of Heatheville residents Mr. and Mrs. B. Paul Jones, he, an oil distributor. She has a brother, Paul Jones, Jr., 25, who is employed with his father; and a sister, Donna, 28, elementary school teacher back home.

Jane plans to move back to her hometown after college, to possibly teach kindergarten, and hopefully to open a nursery with Donna.

But, in moving, she will be leaving her favorite Beach companion Scott Goldstein, a basketball player at VWC, and lifeguard with the North Beach Service.

Jane currently lives in the Watergate Apartments, and is also taking classes at a local modeling agency.

Sitting by a nearby pool, Jane said the water is one of the reasons she moved to Virginia Beach.

Jane never forgets to water her hanging plants.

Cocaine use risky

A blow for your nose is unhealthy

Billy and Babbs may be close to overdosing on

However, they are confident it won't happen. Even at this moment, as they take another hit.

Billy loads up. He has just mixed a fresh batch. Much like a heroin junkie preparing another fix, he takes great delight in the preparation.

Babbs, with greed in her eyes, impatiently awaits her turn. Billy prepares as fast as he can. He has the process down to seven minutes flat.

In a few minutes, another $50 worth of cocaine will be up in smoke, in their lungs.

For what Billy and Babbs are doing is "free-basing" or "baseballing." They smoke coke.

At Billy and Babb's beachfront cottage in Virginia

Beach, the binge has gone on eight days. And counting.

For eight straight days and nights, Billy and Babbs have done virtually nothing but smoke cocaine.

"Free-basing is out of control," Babbs said between hits.

"It is easy to get out of control doing it," Billy added. The urge to continue that roller-coaster high, to do more, is overpowering.

Billy, once hooked on heroin, said he is now addicted to cocaine, but in a different way.

"I can walk away from smoking coke," he said, "provided there is none left."

With heroin, the urge to get more is constant.

But Billy and Babbs try never to run out of cocaine.

When that does happen, they notice they are more restless, they cat a great deal and try to sleep a lot.

Billy and Babbs are not fictional. And they have a lot of company in the underground drug culture.

But names were changed for this article.
At last check, they still were "free-basing to beat the band," as Billy said. They had not yet run out.

They support this phenomenally expensive habit by selling other drugs—cocaine, marijuana, speed.
But this becomes increasingly difficult while smoking coke, getting stoned.

"You tend to want to withdraw, to be non-productive," said Babbs. "Even something simple like answering the telephone is a hassle."

So coke "free basers" usually unplug the phone and miss their drug sales. Phones are a necessary part of the drug dealer's existence.

This forces Billy and Babbs to "scuffle up" dollars in order to afford more.

"We could spend maybe $400 every few days on this," said Billy, "but if we didn't do it, we would probably not scuffle up that money. So, actually, we wouldn't have the money or the cocaine."

At times they are near exhaustion. Their muscles and lungs ache from forcibly holding the coke smoke in their lungs before exhaling into what seasoned "baseballers" call the "roller coaster."

That's their name for the uncommon high associated with smoking cocaine—a high so new that drug researchers still don't know what, if any, ill-effects it may produce.

What it is producing now is a legion of drug fanatics, hooked on smoking coke. A noted University of California at Los Angeles drug researcher says the practice has taken cocaine from the so-called "harmless, recreational state" to a new and perhaps lethal danger zone in drug abuse.

But there is confusion here.

Million dollar study

Billy and Babbs had to laugh when they read recently published excerpts from a multimillion-dollar, 10-year study in Washington that said drug abuse in this country essentially is not a problem and is under relative control.

Free baser

What free-basers have over the traditional up-thenose cocaine snorters is almost pure cocaine in their system.

The chemical process of free-basing removes almost all adulterants-or cut-that come with most street-grade cocaine—thus, the stronger, more intense high.

Free-basers get 90 percent pure cocaine per dose. Snorters may get half as much.

The smoke goes quickly and directly from the lungs into the bloodstream, where it takes up to seven days to flush through the system. Because cocaine anesthetizes the system, bringing on numbness, it is very hard, if not impossible, to tell when you have had enough. Cocaine snorters usually get a bloody nose or other outward problems that cause them to let up or stop. "But what has kept us from doing more than we've done," said Billy, "is our lungs. They get to a saturation point. So much coke is absorbed in our lungs that we cannot hold any more. We reach a point where we can't seem to get any higher.

"But we are still trying."

If the blood reaches the saturation point, overdose—and death—is a distinct possibility.

Free-basing still is in the experimental stage.

"That's one of the reasons we were attracted to it," said Babbs. "It is something different. We are treading new ground."

Researchers—private and government—are uncommonly quiet about cocaine smoking.

Dr. Ron Seigel, perhaps the country's most noted cocaine researcher and drug analyst, refused to elaborate on dangers involved with cocaine smoking.

However, from his LICLA office he said enough in a

However, from his UCLA office, he said enough in a telephone interview to make you wonder.

"In the last few months, I have come up with some disturbing news about free-basing," Seigel said, "but I wish to discuss it in my own forum."

That means he will write a paper on the subject for a medical journal.

At the National Institute for Drug Abuse in Rockville, Md., Gene Barnett, who is equally familiar with cocaine smoking, said the "entire subject is too political to discuss." When pressed, however, he does.

Travel

The report shows that otal travel expenditures in Virginia were an estimated $2,589,000,000, or a nine percent increase over the $2,369,000,000 spent in

Travel inflation

"While Virginia's nine percent increase was about even with growth rates of other southern states, it did not keep abreast of the nation's travel inflation rate of about 15 percent in 1979," said Dr. Douglas C. Frechtling, director of the Travel Data Center.

"This is because last year's gasoline shortages hampered travel business in the Southern and Northeastern states," he explained, "and because the states which traditionally compete with Virginia for fourism business hampered travel business (Continued from page 2) in regard to the store's business. "Hilltop is a large area, but Kempsville is grown fast too. In fact, that may be the area to look at year's gasoline shortages tourism business have substantially increased their tourism-promotion budgets to vacationers." attract

Of the $2,59 billion spent in Virginia, out-ofstate visitors contributed $1,566,000,000, Virginians visiting throughout the Commonwealth spent $492,000,000 and Virginians preparing for out-of-state destinations spent and additional $531,000,000 (purchases such as airline, bus and rail tickets, etc.).

"These estimates are conservative because they include only overnight trips and day trips of 100 miles or more away from home taken by U.S. residents," Frechtling added. "They do not include shorter trips or the considerable expenditures by Canadian and other Canadian and other foreign visitors to Virginia each year."

Other cities have different bicycle registration laws

In Portsmouth, bicycle registration is mandatory, the registration decal costs two dollars and is good for the life of the bike or until the owner changes. Riding an unregistered bicycle can result in the confiscation and impoundment of the vehicle. Impounding fees cost the owner five dollars in addition to the two dollars to register the bicycle.

Hampton has voluntary bicycle registration. The decal is valid for the lifetime of the bicycle or until ownership changes and costs 25 cents.

Russell House discussed

A second Russell House behind the first at First Colonial and Wolfsnare Roads isn't what the neighbors want and Virginia Beach City Council agreed Monday afternoon by a vote of 8-3.

Richmond which sponsor the project, said that it was not a Catholic project and that the home would be open to all. He said that there is already a waiting list for the first Russell House which would fill two.

He said that the operation can be twice as effective by having the second unit at the site because of services involved. Some of the elderly supporting the petition had waited 41/2 hours for the item to be discussed, he said.

Grover Wright, representing Russell House, said a berm would be constructed on the Lindsley Road side and that there would be access only from First Colonial Road

Mary Ellen Cox, a member of the Community Development Committee, said there was a need for housing for the elderly. Elizabeth S. McClain, vice chairman of the Mayor's Committee on the aging, said that there were 9500 people in Virginia Beach 65 or over and that the elderly will increase at twice the rate as the rest of the population by 1983. She said the site is convenient to transportation, shopping and access to medical facilities.

Kent Mote, representing the First Colonial Civic League, said he was not opposed to housing for the elderly, but that the 120 units will actually place multifamily housing in a single-family zoned neighborhood. He said that three other applicants are competing for the same money from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to fund housing for the elderly and handicapped. He said property for the project is already zoned properly elsewhere.

Donna Bonney of 968 Lindsley Drive, said the residents approved the first Russell House, but that the operators of Russell House said then they did not want high density so the residents would have peaceful surroundings. Now they want ten times the density permitted by the zoning, she said.

She said that Russell House violated an agreement.

Harold Johnson, president of the First Colonial Civic

League, said he was a senior citizen but that it was "not a sin to be against a home for the aged" in that neigh-

Wright said that the building would be limited to 35 feet in height and maintained that First Colonial Road has nothing but institutional use on this side. He said that the closest resident on Lindsley Drive will be 170 feet from the building.

Councilman Donald Merrick said that he was in favor of the First Russell House, but that 120 units for rental will make the project an apartment rather than a home. A home for the aged does not include apartment use, he

He mentioned the three other applicants for the funds--Hilltop Manor which is zoned A-2 and is next to the Laskin Apartments; Riverview Village at Great Neck Road and Old Great Neck Road zoned A-1 and A-2 for apartments, and Brith Sholem at Kempsville, zoned A-Councilwoman Barbara Henley-raised the question of definitions. She said the city had no difinition of what a home for the elderly was.

City manager George L. Hanbury said he had talked to the Planning Department about the same thing.

Councilman Reid Ervin said that neighborhood integrity was important.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf, addressing Wright, said, "You and I both know that (if the permit Wright, said, "You and I both know that (if the permit were granted) there isn't anyone who will build anything but apartments there." She added that with another Russell House at the site, "you can make justification for your next high density request."

Voting against denial were Councilmen John A. Baum, J. Curtis Payne Jr. and Mayor Patrick L. Standing.

Council also concurred with the recommendation of the Planning Commission and denied a petition which would have permitted 2,047 dwelling units in an area (See REACTIONS page 23)

Harris performs Shakespeare

Brent Harris of Virginia Beach has been signed as a professional cast member the 1980 Virginia Shakespeare Festival in Williamsburg.

The festival, one of only 20 major Shakespearean Festivals in the nation, will present three of Shakespeare's brightest comedies at the College of William and Mary in 38 performances during its season from July 10-August 17.

The plays are "The Merchant of Venice," in which Harris plays the role of Lorenzo, an artistic, music-loving young man; "As You Like It," in which he performs both as the country bumpkin, William, and as a Lord to the Duke Frederick; and "The Comedy of Errors," where he appears as Angelo, a goldsmith. Harris is a junior at the College of William and Mary, where he has performed in productions for the William and Mary Theatre, the Williamsburg Players, and the Covenant Players.

The cast will rehearse six days a week, ten hours a day, in preparation for the Festival's July 10 opening. Cast members will live in the College's campus housing during the festival.

Woodstove buyer's check list

If you are still considering buying a woodstove for your home, now may be a good time to shop around and compare different models. With the warmer weather of spring and summer, most homeowners are more than happy to forget winter's heating bills and worries and turn their thoughts to other matters.

But spring and summer are good times to shop for and possibly buy a woodstove. In a sense, spring and summer can be thought of as the "off-season" for woodstove sales. The important thing, however, is that the consumer has plenty of time to determine his needs and compare the different woodstove models and features. He does not have to feel hurried or rushed in buying because of cold weather or approaching winter

The following is a checklist of questions that should be useful for you if you plan to buy a woodstove:

"How much space is to be heated and is the space open or divided by partitions?

•Is the stove going to be the primary source of heat or a supplemental one?

• What are the local building codes and at what cost is

•Will two small stoves do the job better than one large one?

•How long has the stove been in production?
•How does the dealer rate the heat output of the woodstove and is the method used valid? If not, ask for references of prior buyers.

•Is it made of cast iron or steel and how well is it constructed?

• What features does the stove have (grates, dampers,

•Do I have a readily available source of wood or does the dealer know of sources?

•What is the guarantee on this model and what does it

• Has the stove been tested by a reputable testing facility for safety and performance? (check for label on stove).

Contact the Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture/Cooperative Extension Service for "Publication 752-wood burning stoves for modern home heating" if you have further questions on buying a woodstove.

reserved for agricultural use in the Comprehensive Plan. R. G. Moore applied for the changes in zoning of 312 acres on the west side of Landstown Road, southwest of its intersection with Princess Anne Road from AG-1 Agricultural District to R-9 Residential Townhouse District on 65 acres; from AG-1 to A-2 Apartment District on a 30-acre parcel; from R-8 Residential District to PD-H Planned Development Housing District to PD-H Planned Development Housing District on nine acres, and AG-1 to PD-H on 280 acres.

The existing zoning allows 357 dwelling units. Douglas Talbot, of Talbot and Associates, planner for the project, charged that the application was tried by

He said that when the Comprehensive Plan was drawn, attorneys had asked that attention be given to that area. He said Council was not dealing with the hinterlands or suburbia, but a transitional corridor.

He said that Moore was building his own retention system and would dedicate 45 acres for two school sites and additional land for Landstown Road. Moore would also build two lanes of Landstown Road, he said.

Richard Webbon, representing the Council of Civic Organizations (CCO), said the application is beyond all acceptable limits under the Comprehensive Plan. He said the CCO was not opposing the position with the idea of stopping growth but for developing gradually.

Ervin Douglas, also representing the CCO, said that if Council consistently set aside the Comprehensive Plan which took hundreds of hours to prepare, it would have little chance to stand a court test.

The reputation of the developer is not the issue, but whether the plan is strong enough to provide the basis for strong development, he said.

Helen Paul, representing the CCO and the Salem Civic League said the public accepts and understands the importance of a land use plan while some members of Council do not. The citizens should not have to come down to fight every breach of the plan, she said.

Dwight Jones, president of the Salem Civic League, said the project would tax the drainage.

Grover Wright, attorney for Moore, said that the intent of PD-H zoning was to encourage more effective use of the land, to provide for flexible development. He asaid that it is permitted in agricultural, residential and apartment districts. To deviate from the comprehensive plan is not a crime, he said. "They love to have your problems in Norfolk," he said, where they're trying to get people to move in.

Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr. said application was premature and moved for denial. The vote was ten in favor of denial and one abstention from Councilman Reid Ervin.

Also denied in concurrence with a recommendation of the Planning Commission was an application from Daniel H. Templeton for a change of zoning from A-2 Apartment District to A-4 Apartment District on a 1.36 acre parcel on the north side of Shasta Court north of

Daytona Drive in the Lynnhaven Borough,
Voting against denial were Ervin and Mayor Patrick

L. Standing.

By a closer vote of 6-5 the Planning Commission again withheld in its recommendation for denial of an application from C. S. Yoder and John B. Baines for a change of zoning from R-5 Residential District to O-1 Office District on a 11.172 acre parcel on the north side of First Colonial Road, west of Mill Dam Road, Lynnhaven Borough.

The existing zoning allows 33 single-family homes while the proposed zoning would allow a variety of office uses.

Wright, attorney for the applicant, said that transitional zoning was proper and that he didn't believe anyone had built a shopping center in 15 or 20 years.

The application was opposed by Tim Barrow, a planner and resident of the area, and Lyle Werners, an engineer who also is a resident, because of the drainage

Over 70 percent of the area is in the floodway of Mill Dam Creek, Barrow said. He said the project would require a substantial removal of trees and is not in accord with the Comprehensive Plan, water quality repurement or sensitive to environmental areas.

He said that the plan called for 188,000 square feet of office space.

The Great Neck Association opposed the application.

John Gravatt said that the people of Great Neck Farms bought homes there with the understanding that the land was for residential development.

Councilman Donald Merrick moved to deny the application. Voting against the motion were Councilmen George R. Ferrell, J. Curtis Payne Jr., R. L. Riggs, Clarence A. Holland and Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy

"I'm a people watcher," said Virginia Beach resident Lisa Sigmon. "I look forward to the summer just to go to the boardwalk and see all the different sights, people, and changes that the beach goes through every year. I lived in Georgia for five years, and I liked it, but I like Virginia Beach better, and plan to plant my feet here indefinately." Lisa, the 20 year old daughter of Beach resident Mrs. Dixie Fitzgerald, lives in the Hilltop section of the Beach, and is a microfilm technician with Mutual Federal Savings and Loan, Norfolk. She is a Bluegrass, and Country and Western music fan, and enjoys clogging, (mountain dancing), and square dancing. Her favorite Beach nightspot is Country Comfort; and her favorite restaurant is the Family Fish House. Lisa's hobbies include water, and snow sking, horseback riding, swimming, and dancing. "I'm really fortunate to be living in Virginia Beach," she said, "because of all the people, beaches, and entertainment available for its residents.

"The Beach needed something new," said Virginia Beach restaurant owner Steve Rankin, "so we're giving it to them: The Crystal."

Located at 315 Virginia Beach Boulevard, the Crystal is now open, and promises to be one of the premier restaurants at the Beach.

The $100,000 establishment seats 350, and will be "like a supper club," Rankin said, "with light entertainment.

'The menu will include a couple of choice steaks, but will feature a raw seafood bar, and Caribbean dishes, such as conch chowder and fritters, and black beans with yellow rice."

Marines look for recruits.

No, it's not an invasion of Virginia Beach's shores. These LVT-7's, (Landing Vehicle Tracks) recently set ground at 6th Street and oceanfront to "attract attention, and promote interest for Marine recruiting purposes," said United States Marine, HMC, D. H. Lowery, "and to saow off our Marine Amphibious vehicles." The LVT-7's, according to Lowery, cost between $325 and $400,000 each, if ordered in groups of 100 or more.

They can travel up to 45 miles per hour on land, and eight mph in water.

No actual registration for the Marines took place during the one day recruiting session, Lowery said, "we're just out here collecting names."

Parking enfuriates tourists

By GREG GOLDFARB

The restrictive parking laws on Atlantic Avenue are crippling Beach businesses, and infuriating tourists.

Goldfarb

The recently enacted law excludes parking entirely on the east side of the avenue and allows parking on the west side only between the hours of 12 noon and 10 p.m. It was approved last spring by city council in an IIth by city council in an IIth hour compromise agreement between local innkeepers and merchants.
Metal no parking signs

p.m., particularily movie houses and restaurants, contend that a law which requires people to stop what they're doing at 10 p.m. to go repark their cars, or receive a six dollar traffic summons, is ridiculous. Although the streets are clear in the mornings for deliveries.

Tourists plead ignorance of the law, and angerily receive traffic tickets for patronizing Beach businesses for too long, or at the wrong time.

Innkeepers are keeping their mouths shut because they think the ordinance is curtailing unwanted nightly noise which run some hotel and motel guests away. But, what they are experiencing is not a traffic or parking problem, it is a law enforcement problem; i.e. the illegally parked cars are not making the ruckus, it's usually the drivers of the moving ones.

The police, who are dutifully enforcing city code, question the fairness of the law.

But of all the different factions involved in this issue, it is the weekend tourist that protests the most, and is being paid the least amount of attention. An alarming observation for a city whose economic basis thrives on tourism.

This tourist is angry

A Pennsylvania resident visiting Virginia Beach called The Sun last weekend and reported his reactions to the Beach's Atlantic Avenue restrictive parking ordances:

"My wife and I were staying at the Ocean House Motel at 3108 Atlantic Avenue, and asked some local people for a good place to eat. Sir Richard's Rib House was suggested, and we heeded the advice.

"We went into the restaurant about 10:30 p.m. and came and shout. I a m. after enjoying a fine dinner to came out about 1 a.m. after enjoying a fine dinner to find a disgusting six dollar parking ticket on the windshield of our car for parking space where we were parked; only a no parking-loading zone sign located behind my car.

"In talking with natives of the Beach, about 75% of them didn't know anything about the restricted parking ordinance.

"I think if Virginia Beach wants tourists from Pennsylvania and upper New York to come visit the city and spend money here instead of going to Atlantic City, measures should be taken to fairly warn tourists about the city's parking code."

The police keep writing tickets

Virginia Beach police question the code's fairness, but say the general public, including tourists, receive fair notice of the city's restrictive parking.

"I don't know exactly how many no parking signs there are on Atlantic Avenue," said E. F. Bazzy, captain, second precinct, "but there are at least two or three on every block.

"In addition, each parking meter has an orange sticker (see illustration) spelling out when motorists can

Editorial Comment

"I'm not sure if the law is fair or not; I wasn't included in the discussions between city council and the city manager concerning the reasoning behind the passage of the law, but it is the law, and will be enfor-

In regard to the Pennsylvanians statement that 75% of the Beach natives, which could have been as few as three out of four people, are not aware of the restricted parking laws, Buzzy said:

"Most people are aware of the law; in fact, one night I saw a waitress from a restaurant warn a motorist not to park on Atlantic Avenue after 10 p.m., but the motorist said he wasn't worried about it and parked there anyway."

Motorists should be allowed to park on Atlantic Avenue anytime, according to some Beach businessmen who think the present parking situation only serves to encourage tourists not to return to Virginia Beach next year.

Ray Caddell, manager, Sir Richard's, 2014 Atlantic Avenue: "The reason the restricted parking was enacted is because the restaurant owners got together and tried to find a solution to the noise and traffic problems during the summer on Atlantic Avenue.

"But restricted parking is not the solution. The current parking law does not work. It only makes the tourists mad when they come out and find a parking ticket on their windshield after enjoying a nice dinner.

"th's a good idea to try to clean up the streets, but

"It's a good idea to try to clean up the streets, but what the City needs is more policemen to deal with any troublemakers. Maybe even raise the sales tax one cent to employ more officers. What we are dealing with is a law enforcement problem, not a traffic problem."

Bobby Acey, waster, Blande, Betterney, 2009.

law enforcement problem, not a traffic problem."

Bobby Acey, ewner, Ringide Restaurant, 2108

Atlantic Avenue: "If you're going to cut off the parking at 10 p.m., why not do away with it entirely? It's really hard to tell someone in the middle of their meal that it's time for them to go out and repark their car.

"The law is stupid. It's not working. We had a meeting with local police officers, and they say we have a traffic problem on Atlantic Avenue. I say it's a police law enforcement problem.

law enforcement problem.

"The present parking laws on Atlantic Avenue are hurting my business. City Hall has had up to 1,500 complaints about it; and from what I understand, the police have better things to do besides spending their time writing tickets.

"Unrestrictive parking does not lead to traffic congestion, as some people think. Backed up traffic leads to congestion. Restrictive parking only inconveniences tourists, and hurts local businessmen."

Sharon Skurpski, manager, The House of Gifts, 2200 Atlantic Avenue: "If shoppers can't park on Atlantic Avenue, it ruins business for my store. I say let them park on the avenue as late as they want. Our store is open until Midnight; but with the present laws, I may as well shut up at 10 p.m."

Larry Cears, manager, Caesars Restaurant, 2312
Atlantic Avenue: "The restrictive parking on Atlantic Avenue is foolish. We lose customers. Why not let them park there until 2 a,m.?

"Some people say the law is designed to restrict cople from parking next to the curb all night and harassing pedestrians. But the people that are guilty of harassing others are not sitting in parked cars, they are riding up and down the strip; or walking up and down the boardwalk."

City Council wants concensus

Virginia Beach city council members had the following reactions to the rising discontentment on behalf of some of the Beach business community:

"Council has spent no less than three meetings discussing the question of parking on Atlantic Avenue," said councilwoman Barbara Henley, Pungo.

"What was finially adopted was a compromise agreement between business on the west side of the avenue who wanted complete unrestricted parking, and innkeepers on the west side of the avenue who wanted no parking on Atlantic Avenue at all. "But what has to be remembered is that a street is to move traffic and eliminate congestion; not to provide

"Council has bent over backwards trying to serve the Beach merchants by supporting cummuter services to and from Atlantic Avenue, including shuttle buses and trollies; other parking options are available.

"The law will take some getting used to, but until the merchants decide once and for all what kind of parking they want, they'll have to settle for what they have. We have no plans to change.

Donald W. Merrick, Lynnhaven: "I know many people don't like the present ordinance, and there are some people working for a new solution to the problem on Atlantic Avenue. But council will not act again on the issue, until an agreement between Beach merchants and innkeepers is made.

"The mistake that has been made so far is that the merchants came before council without a concensus of how to handle the parking on the avenue. Now they're not happy.

"The most recently conducted study of Atlantic Avenue indicates that making Atlantic and Pacific Avenues one way streets is a plausible solution; but another bridge over Rudee Inlet would have to be built

But I think, in general, we need to study the question some more; make some admendments to the present ordinance, and try to reach some unanimity on this difficult issue."

Buddy Riggs, Virginia Beach: "I voted against the 10 p.m. law. I think it's a poor ordinance.
"The city spends thousands of dollars annually to entice people from out of town to Virginia Beach. Then we tell them they can't park here. This is bad.

"I think the metal signs are irregularly placed; seemingly allowing parking at some areas and not at

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rezoning: Council flip-flops

Dear Editor

The news (Beacon, June 8, p. 3) that the four heavy spenders in the campaign for City Council seats were losers gave a second proof that the changes made by the election were in the right direction.

The first was the outrageous action of the lame duck members in the rezonings of the Sandbridge Road and Thalia areas. In view of the decisiveness of the voters' expression in that election, common courtesy dictated at least the suggested holding over of the matter until the new Council takes over. As usual, common courtesy gave way to politics. The public interest was again sacrificed to assuage the itch of some developers for a fast buck.

Then, in a stunning reversal of form (Sun, June 18, p. 23) the lame ducks joined in the unanimous turn-down of a request for rezoning of farm land in the southern part of the city, even though one of them had termed the applicant one of the more generous developers.

applicant one of the more generous developers.

True, it was finally clear that one more flagrant violation of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan could have wrecked it. Still, it may already have been damaged beyond repair. Their vote on this was clearly inconsistent with those on the earlier requests.

The 180-degree flip-flop casts doubt on their competence in general. Only those Council members who voted to deny all three requests gave evidence in this matter that their heads are screwed on straight.

It is now crystal clear that the changes made in the last Council election, though in the right direction, did not go far enough. In the next election, let's toss out the rest of the deadheads.

Compliments to Lee Cahill

Dear Editor

We want to compliment you on the new profile, the Virginia Beach Sun News has taken while still maintaining its readability and good organization of news data.

We also want to compliment your reporter, Lee Cahill, who does a fantastic job in relating to the paper in a very short time, the actions that are taken by the City Council.

Lee, in her unassuming, but lady-like manner, is a real compliment to the Virginia Beach Sun News and to the profession of news reporting.

OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC COMMENT ON FEDERAL REGULATORY STANDARD CONCERNING TERMINATION OF CUSTOMER SERVICE PRACTICES BY GAS AND ELECTRIC UTILITIES

Case No. PUE 800027

The Public Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 (the "Act"), requires the State Corporation Commission to give public notice and conduct a public hearing on whether the federal Termination of Customer Service Standard established by §§113(b)(4) and 303(b)(1) of the Act should be adopted so as to apply to gas and electric utilities in Virginia. The standard under consideration is as follows.

Procedures for Termination of Electric or Gas Service-No electric utility may terminate electric service to any electric consumer and no gas utility may terminate gas service to any gas consumer except pursuant to the following procedures.

The procedures for termination service are procedures prescribed by the State Corporation Commission which provide that-

(1) no electric service to an electric consumer and no gas service to a gas consumer may terminate unless reasonable prior notice (including notice of rights and remedies) is given to such consumer and such consumer has a reasonable opportunity to dispute the reasons for such termination, and

(2) during any period when termination of service to an electric or gas consumer would be especially dangerous to health, as determined by the State Corporation Commission, and such consumer establishes that-

(A) he is unable to pay for such service in accordance with the requirements of the utility's

(B) he is able to pay for such service but only in installments. such service may not be termi-

Such procedures shall take into account the need to include reasonable provisions for elderly and handicapped consumers.

The State Corporation Commission has scheduled a public hearing on July 28, 1980, in Senate Room B, General Assembly Building, 9th and Governor Streets, Richmond, Virginia, commencing at 10:00 a.m. for the purpose of receiving public comment on the extent to which the above standard should be adopted and applied to all gas and electric utilities under the Commission's jurisdiction operating in Virginia. The appropriate provisions of the Act that must be considered by the Commission are available for inspection during normal business hours at any office of Vepco where bills may be paid and at the Commission's Document Control Center, Floor B1, Blanton Building, Richmond, Virginia.

Persons wishing to file written comments with the Commission, on the adoption of the above standard may file an original and four (4) copies of such comments on or before July 21, 1980. Such written comments shall be addressed to the State Corporation Commission, Document Control Center, P. O. Box 2118, Richmond, Virginia 23216, making reference to Case No. PUE800027.

Any interested person wishing to make an oral statement on his own behalf at the public hearing need only appear at the General Assembly Building, at 9:45 a.m. on July 28, 1980, and inform the Commission's Bailiff that he wishes to speak.

Atlantic Avenue, Pacific; one way?

Virginia Beach is supposed to be a family oriented resort city, and we need to do anything necessary to maintain the city's good image in the eyes of the tourists.

'1 think the solution lies in the construction on Council has been wrestling with this problem for at least 13 years. We need a permanent soloution."

Points to be considered

In regard to Virginia Beach's restricted parking laws, the following points need to be emphasized:

•It does seem stupid to assume that a restaurant owner is going to disturb a family's dinner, only to inform them that if they don't get up, repark the car, and return to a cold meal, their alternative will be a six dollar parking ticket.

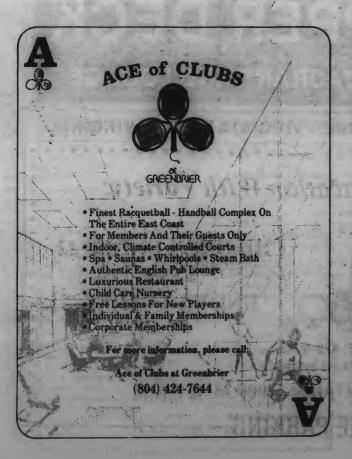

•Because city ordinances do not require parking meters to be paid after 6 p.m., it is also stupid to assume meters to be paid after 6 p.m., it is also stupid to assume that motorists are going to even look twice at the parking meter while on vacation, much less take time to read a little orange sticker during the dinner hour.

•Is it the parked car, or alledgedly, the people in them causing the problems? In either case, it is not the vehicle that needs to be ticketed by policemen. The actual peace-disturbing ordinance offenders are the ones that need to be reckoned with, which in theory, may require more law enforcement officers; not police officers acting as meter maids. ting as meter maids.

•A permanent solution is badly needed; an agreement which can only be reached by a mutual cooperation between Virginia Beach business men on both sides of

OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC COMMENT ON FEDERAL REGULATORY STANDARD CONCERNING ADVERTISING PRACTICES BY GAS AND ELECTRIC UTILITIES

Case No. PUE 800021

The Public Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 (the "Act"), requires the State Corporation Commission to give public notice and conduct public hearing on whether the a public hearing on whether the federal Advertising Standard established by §§113(b)(5) and 303(b)(2) of the Act should be adopted so as to apply to gas and electric utilities in Virginia. The standard under consideration is as follows:

ADVERTISING-No electric or gas utility may recover from any person other than the shareholders (or other owners) of such utility any direct or indirect expenditure by such utility for promotional or political advertising as defined below. For purposes of this standard-

(A) The term "advertising" means the commercial use, by an electric or gas utility, of any media, including newspaper, printed matter, radio, and television, in order to transmit a message to a substantial number of members of the public or to such utility's consumers

(B) The term "political advertising" means any advertising for the purpose of influencing public opinion with respect to legislative, administrative or electoral matters, or with respect to any controversial issue of public importance.

(C) The term "promotional advertising" means any advertising for the purpose of encouraging any person to select or use the service or additional service of the utility or the selection or installation of any appliance or equipment designed to use such utility's service.

For the purposes of this standard, the terms "political advertis-ing" and "promotional advertis-ing" do not include—

(A) Advertising which informs electric or natural gas consumers how they can conserve electricity or natural gas or can reduce peak demand for it,

(B) Advertising required by law or regulation, including advertising required under Part I of Title II of the National Energy Conservation Policy Act,

(C) Advertising regarding service interruptions, safety measures, or emergency conditions,

(D) Advertising concerning employment opportunities with such utility,

(E) Advertising which promotes the use of energy efficient appliances, equipment or serv-

(F) Any explanation or justification of existing or proposed rate schedules, or notification of hearing thereon.

Council members consider

Deferrment voting

Sun staff writer

That some of the voting by Virginia Beach city Council members may be merely another way of deferring questions until the new Council takes office in July bothers Councilman Clarence A. Holland.

At the very end of the last session of the old Council Monday night, Holland said that he has had problems with "some of the motions we've been making during the past several weeks. It bothers me a great deal to defer until the new Council comes in."

Dr. Holland explained later that some member or members, whose convictions may be otherwise, may be voting on the prevailing side of an issue to keep open the option to reconsider the question. He said that it appears to him that this has happened two or three times during the past few weeks.

He said that when a substitute motion fails and a Council member who has voted with the losing side swings his vote to the affirmative side of the original motion, he can later bring the question back for reconsideration. If that member had voted on the losing side, he would not be permitted, to do this under Council

When asked whether the change in voting could have been made because the Council member may not feel that strongly about the issue, Dr. Holland said that he hoped that was the case. He refused to name any Council members or specific items on which the suspected votes were cast.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing disagreed that the voting indicated maneuvering and then called the last meeting to a close

Council actions, until stated otherwise, do not go into effect for 30 days. During that period Council has the prerogative to reconsider the item if it is requested by a member who voted on the prevailing side.

Council will seat the three new Council members and two who were re-elected at the July 7 meeting of Council. Council will also elect a mayor and vice mayor. Mentioned most frequently for the mayor's post are Donald Merrick, meyera Oberndorf and J. Henry Mc-Coy Jr. New to the Council will be Reba McClanan, W. H. Kitchin and Harold Heischober. Oberndorf and John A. Baum were re-elected and George R. Ferrell did not run for re-election.

During the past two years, the most common alignments on Council have been Baum, J. Curtis Payne, Standing, Holland and Ferrell on one side and Merrick, Reid Ervin, Oberndorf and Barbara Henley on the other with vice mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. and R. L. Riggs voting with either side.

With Payne and Ferrell both leaving Council, the power is expected to shift to the other side which apparently sparked Holland's suspicions about some of the votes during the past few weeks. But whether that side will have a clear majority is now in doubt because of a rift between Oberndorf, who received the greatest number of votes in the Councilmanic election, and Ervin and Merrick. Ervin has openly supported Merrick for the mayor's office.

Monday's meeting opened, however, with resolutions of appreciation to the three retiring Council members-Ferrell, Payne and Riggs.

Ferrell has been on Council since 1966, served as vice mayor from 1974 to 1976 and was formerly a member and chairman of the School Board. In accepting the resolution, he said he hoped "Virginia Beach is a better place than it was when I found it."

Payne has served on Council since 1967 and mayor from 1974 to 1976. He's also served on the Tidewater Transportation District Commission and other boards. He said he enjoyed his tenure on Council and "have no regrets on my decisions...I have no apologies." He exhorted all to work toward having Virginia Beach become the "greatest city in the United States."

Riggs served on Council for the past four years and on the Planning Commission from 1970 to 1976. He has raised funds for the Beach's oardiac rescue team, and originated the "I Love America" campaign. He said it was a great pleasure and privilege to serve on Council and that he had always received any help he requested from the administrative staff.

Eight to three vote

Shook request denied

After his motion for denial of a variance failed by a vote of 7-4, Monday evening, Virginia Beach Councilman Donald Merrick switched his vote to the prevailing side for approval by an 8-3 vote.

The case involved a request for a variance from the Subdivision Ordinance by Henry A. Shook which would permit him to subdivide a 1.18 acre site at the northwest intersection of Bay Colony Drive and Hill Road into

The lots would not confrom to dimensions for R-2 Residential District which requires an area of 30,000 square feet and a width of 100 feet. One of the proposed lots would have an area of 20,063 feet and the other would have a width of only 15 feet, which would be a flag lot.

Robert Miller, attorney representing Shook, said that two houses have been located on the lot for 30 or 40 years but that since they are not on separate lots, the property is tied up.

Steven Strikler, attorney and president of the Cavalier Park-Bay Colony Civic League said that the present situation creates no undue hardship for Shook who is "an experienced real estate man and was aware of the zoning when he bought the property a few years ago."
He said that initially the structures were a large house in front and a kind of servants quarters in the back, rather than two separate substantial dwellings.

Merrick moved for denial, noting that one lot is only two-thirds the size required by the ordinance and that public access is still not open to Crystal Lake as stipulated when Hill road was closed alongside the Shook property.

His motion failed when negative votes were cast by Councilmen John A. Baum, George R. Ferrell, Clarence A. Holland, J. Curtis Payne, R. L. Riggs, Mayor Patriack L. Standing and Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy

When a motion for approval was made Merrick voted for approval with dissenting votes cast by Councilman Reid Ervin and Councilwomen Barbara Henley and Meyera Oberndorf.

Public works office

Oral C. Lambert, Jr. elected to new post

Mr. C. Oral Lambert, Jr., director of public works for the City of Virginia Beach, has been elected to serve as a director of the Virginia/District of Columbia/Mary-land Chapter of the American Public Works Association.

This action was taken during the general business session of the Annual Chapter Meeting held recently in Fredericksburg, Virginiad:

The American Public Works Association is a non-profit public service organization made up of government officials, engineers, administrators and others engaged in the broad field of public works. Its purpose is to provide a common meeting ground to enable these people to work together to improve the practice of their profession, and thereby serve the best interest of the tax paying public. It's good exercise

On a clear summer day in Virginia Beach, bicyclists are abundant.

One such cyclist is Kim Brinkley, 17, the daughter of Mrs. Salley Brinkley. Employed with the Virginia Beach Ocean Resue, and a rising senior at Princess Anne High School, Kim said she enjoys bicycle riding on her day off for several reasons: "I love bike riding on the boardwalk," she said, "because of all the people you meet, and all the friends you see. Plus, bicycle riding is good carried."
